

Warship Weathers Terrific 7-Hour Dive-Bomber Raid

By LARRY ALLEN.

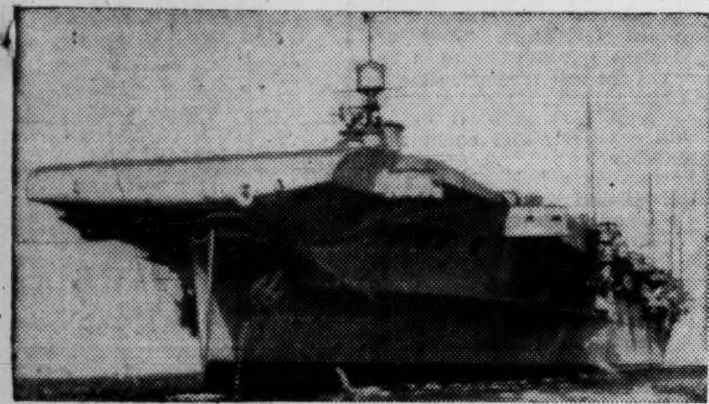

ABOARD AIRCRAFT CARRIER ILLUSTRIOUS, WITH BRITISH MEDITERRANEAN FLEET, Jan. 15.—(AP)—This scarred aircraft carrier, attacked for seven hours on January 10 by German dive bombers, came into a Mediterranean port under her own power today.

Forty to fifty Nazi planes, making the heaviest attack upon a single British warship of this war, flung torpedoes at the Illustrious' sides and 100,000 pounds of high explosive bombs at her flight deck in an unsuccessful attempt to put this newest of Britain's carriers under water.

The German pilots, diving head-on, plunged into a great wall of gunfire; they spattered the decks with machinegun bullets and dropped scores of bombs on the Illustrious' port and starboard sides.

Seven hours of this violent assault ended at dark.

The German pilots dived so low that the markings

Battered but unbowed

could be easily seen on their big Junker planes. They dropped bombs all around the deck. Bomb splinters flew about the bridge and the rest of the carrier like hailstones; near misses so shook her that it seemed they would hurl her over on her side.

The Germans attacked while the Illustrious and units of the British Mediterranean fleet units were escorting a big eastbound convoy, and after a British cruiser had sunk the 64-ton Italian destroyer Vega.

At 12:30 on January 10 the marine bugler sounded the warning and a voice over the loudspeaker system called out:

Big Bomb Hits Ship.

I reached the bridge just as a big bomb struck the ship. There was a shattering blast. Almost simultaneously a thousand-pound bomb crashed alongside and a blinding flash seemed to envelope the ship.

The British have announced that the Illustrious, the 9,100-ton cruiser Southampton and the 1,335-ton destroyer Gallant had been damaged, and that at least 12 of the attacking planes were shot down.

One officer put it this way: "It was the most tremendous, terrifying thing I ever saw. It seemed like all the fires of hell had been kindled. A blast of a thousand-pound bomb is so crushing, so incredible, that there are no words to describe it."

The first bomb fell almost at the moment some British fighter planes had taken off to engage the Germans.

Another bomb tore holes in the carrier's side. Still another crashed and fragments from a near miss struck a gun crew at a pom-pom station. They stood up unflinchingly to face German machinegun fire and pumped shells as fast as they could into the bombers.

"Her crane was twisted."

Every Gun Roars.

Every gun on the Illustrious roared at the Germans, but they kept diving in, bombs and torpedoes narrowly missing the carrier.

British battleships, cruisers and destroyers attacked both German and Italian bombers. Huge splashes from near misses helped to hide the ship from the bombers.

The entire crew of the Illustrious, except the officers on the bridge and the crew firing the pom-poms (multi-barreled anti-aircraft guns), gathered to help their wounded comrades and carried them across the flight deck to medical stations under direct fire of machineguns and bombs.

As soon as a few surviving seriously wounded mechanics were pulled out of the wreckage their comrades dashed in to get others.

The few fighter planes which the Illustrious was able to get into the air before the first bombs struck forced the Germans off temporarily, but that short respite was the only break in the attack in the whole afternoon; less than an hour later the Nazis returned to drop more bombs.

Again there was the deadly vibrating drone of bombers;

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES, BARRANI, Egypt, first Italian stronghold to fall in the British onslaught, but the tears came when he referred to the fall of Bardia, Libya, an even greater defeat for the Fascist forces.

Argentino escaped from both doomed fortresses, but was spotted by an RAF plane Sunday while hiding at the edge of the sea. A motorboat went out and took him prisoner.

The British officers said his attitude toward the desert fighting was not unusual. They said correspondence seized at Sidi Barrani and Bardia disclosed considerable friction and jealousy among the Italian officers as well as a constant spying upon them by subordinates who reported on the extent of their loyalty to Fascism.

Hull, Morgenthau Plead for British Aid

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull and Treasury Secretary Morgenthau warned congress in blunt terms today that Great Britain faces a financial dilemma which only President Roosevelt's loan-lease bill can prevent and that the United States may be drawn into the war regardless of the course it pursues.

Both appeared before the house foreign affairs committee in support of the far-reaching British aid bill. Secretary of War Stimson will testify tomorrow.

Morgenthau submitted a balance sheet of British finances showing that Britain will be able to pay cash this year for some $3,000,000,000 in war materials ordered from this country, but he said that "when it comes to finding the dollars to pay for anything like what they need, they just haven't got it."

In prepared data and under questioning, Morgenthau:

1. Believed that anything produced under the $17,000,000,000 already appropriated for national defense could be disposed of under the loan-lease program, including warships.

2. Refused to approve Republican proposals for a $2,000,000,000 ceiling on appropriations under the bill. He said this was up to congress.

3. Held that the President would not be given power under the bill to seize foreign ships in American ports or to use American warships to convoy materials abroad.

4. Declined to say whether "we would get paid back or not" for materials sent to Britain.

5. Contended that the legislation would not cancel the Johnson debt defaulters' act but would revise provisions of the neutrality law banning credits to belligerents.

6. Warned that the United States is the only country in which Britain can obtain sufficient war material to continue the fight against Germany and Italy.

Main points in Hull's four-hour appearance before the committee were:

1. A charge that the totalitarian powers have ruthlessly disregarded the rights of neutral nations and are bent on world conquest.

2. A statement that he has not heard questioned the Republican plan to limit to two years Presidential powers under the loan-lease bill.

3. A contention that the repair

Mrs. Donehoo Atlanta Woman Easy Victor in Coroner Race

Carlton Binns Second;
Votes Cast.

Mrs. Paul Donehoo yesterday was elected Fulton county coroner in a runaway race against 47 men opponents, complete but unofficial figures compiled by The Constitution disclosed last night.

Mrs. Donehoo succeeds her late husband, Paul Donehoo, the noted blind coroner, who held the office for 32 years and who, at the time of his death December 22, had just been sworn in for a four-year term that was to have begun January 1.

Light Vote Cast.

In a light election Mrs. Donehoo polled 2,757 votes to 1,398 for her nearest opponent, Carlton Binns, attorney. In third place was former Deputy Sheriff J. Gordon Hardy, with 692, and Harry G. Poole was fourth with 646. Only one other candidate, Frank F. Smith, with 556, polled more than 500 votes. The others were far back.

Only 9,562 ballots were cast out of a registered electorate of 52,000, a fact which election officials attributed to bad weather.

Mrs. Donehoo, who, since her marriage to Mr. Donehoo in 1936, had served as his secretary, last night said she was "most grateful" to those who supported her and pledged her best efforts to the handling of the position.

Honor Graduate.

The new coroner is 35 years old. She was a first honor graduate of the high school at Social Circle and later attended State Teachers College, the University of Georgia and Southern Business school. She was a teacher of English for four years and for six years was connected with an Atlanta business house, resigning upon her marriage. She assisted her husband both in his office and at inquests, and during his last illness assumed full charge of his work.

She has two children, a daughter, Peggy 3, and a son, Paul Jr., 9 months old.

HONOLULU, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The battleship Pennsylvania again is the flagship of the United States fleet. Admiral James O. ## Both Houses Given Similar Block of Bills

Measures Would Reduce Salaries, Revamp Departments.

By JACK SPALDING.

Administration forces lost no time yesterday putting through a program to rid the statehouse of holdovers from the Rivers regime, to broaden the powers of Governor Talmadge and bring about economy in state government.

Similar bills repealing laws and abolishing boards created under Rivers, reducing salaries of elective officials and reorganizing state departments and commissions were introduced in both the house and the senate.

In both bodies bills were introduced and referred to committees providing for reorganization of the State Highway Board, the state hospital and housing authorities, abolition of the State Radio Commission and State Licensing Board for Contractors and reduction of the salaries of secretary of state, comptroller general, state treasurer and superintendent of schools.

Seek Longer Term.

Resolutions were also presented providing for a constitutional amendment lengthening the Governor's term to four years. Other state constitutional officers would also have four-year terms concurrent with the Governor's.

In addition the house received a bill increasing the powers of the Governor in administering the appropriations act by allowing him to shift departmental surpluses to the emergency fund. Another house bill seeks the re-establishment of the State Purchasing Department within the Executive Department. All funds now held by the state supervisor of purchases would go to the new agency.

Introduced in both houses, another administration bill would permit the Governor to suspend the state treasurer and comptroller general for neglect of duties or misconduct, and provided for appointment of their successors.

Had Difficulty.

Governor Talmadge ran into considerable difficulty during his previous administration in attempting to oust State Treasurer George B. Hamilton, who still holds office, and Comptroller General William B. Harrison. The National Guard was finally called out to carry out his orders.

Further broadening the Governor's powers were bills providing no appointment by the Governor shall be subject to confirmation by the senate unless the statute under which such appointment is made requires confirmation.

The bill, if passed, will make it unnecessary for an incoming ad-

Bills To Slash Pay of Officials Introduced in House and Senate

Proposals to slash the salaries of four elected state officials were contained in bills introduced yesterday in both the house and senate.

The house was also asked for legislation to permit the pipelines to traverse public property and obtain the right of condemnation of rights of way.

Fifteen of the 49 bills introduced in the house were sponsored by the three members of the Fulton delegation, Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, Paul Etheridge Jr., and Cicero Kendrick.

The four elective officers affected by the first of the economy bills to come before the assembly were those of secretary of state, state treasurer, comptroller general and superintendent of schools. The resolution introduced in the house to lengthen the Governor's term from two to four years set his annual salary at $7,500, the present figure, but added it may be cut to any suitable figure. The resolution also forbade the Governor from succeeding himself in office.

A two-thirds majority of both houses and ratification at the next general election is necessary before the last-mentioned proposal becomes law.

Under terms of the bills, a flat $5,000 a year would be paid the comptroller general, the secretary of state, and state treasurer. The superintendent of schools would receive $3,000 a year as secretary of the board of education and $2,000 as school superintendent.

The bills re-creating the highway board set $5,000 as the chairman's salary in place of the $7,200 he now receives. The two other

HAS PARDONING POWER—Elsie Ray, as Governor Talmadge's executive secretary, becomes one of six women in the United States with power to pardon, issue reprieves, or even commute death sentences. The duties are imposed by state law on the executive secretary to the Governor.

Elsie Ray, Executive Secretary To Talmadge, Has Wide Power

Duties Give Fort Valley Woman Authority To Commute Death Sentences, Issue Pardons or Reprieves.

A woman today possesses the power to pardon, to issue reprieves or even to commute death sentences in Georgia.

These duties, imposed by state law, developed upon Elsie Ray, newly-appointed executive secretary to Governor Talmadge. Whether she may be called upon to exercise those duties is still problematical.

Miss Ray has been a long-time business associate of Talmadge. As one of six women holding similar office, although of differing responsibilities, in the United States, Miss Ray will have charge of the entire executive department.

A native of Fort Valley, Miss Ray will continue a career of service with Talmadge which began in 1927, when he was state commissioner of agriculture.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Ray, who reside on a farm near Fort Valley, Miss Ray has three sisters, Mrs. G. R. Powell, Mrs. C. A. Seals and Mrs. Robert Bird, who live in Atlanta.

Crisp and concise in manner, the new secretary brings with her considerable experience in the field of government and politics, and through the various duties delegated to her by law, will be kept busy.

An office force of at least six workers, comprised of stenographers, clerks and a bookkeeper, will be under her direction.

As the Governor's principal assistant, she will answer at least 50 per cent of his mail, responding to appeals for jobs and similar requests; will keep a schedule of appointments, speaking engagements and social obligations; will help draft speeches and may even be designated as his emissary at various functions.

Despite her active professional career, Miss Ray maintains a steady interest in farm life and its problems and, with her sisters, makes frequent trips to Fort Valley, where she has two collie dogs for special pets.

The growing of flowers is among her avocations.

$10,000 CAMPAIGN.

ALBANY, Ga., Jan. 15.—The Albany Chamber of Commerce yesterday launched a campaign to raise $10,000 for its 1941 budget. L. W. Smith, campaign manager, said $6,595 of the total was pledged in advance by businessmen.

Rigid Spending Control Called 'Revolutionary'

Highway Department Expenditures Limited to Specific Amounts.

By LUKE GREENE.

Grasping a firm hold on the state's financial machinery, Governor Talmadge yesterday ordered state department heads to submit budgets cutting their operating costs to the "rock bottom" and instructed the State Highway Department to limit its expenditures to specified amounts during the next 12 months.

The Governor acted as director of the budget in sending out the detailed budgetary instructions. This was the first move in carrying out his promise to effect state economies and get the state out of debt.

He told the department heads that "after January 15, 1941, no agency of the state is authorized to expend, obligate or in any way dispose of the state's funds or credit unless same has been approved by the budget bureau in writing and then same cannot be expended except in accordance with the items set out in the approved budget."

Must Get Approval.

The Governor added that no obligation against the state is authorized until it has been approved by the director of the budget and the assistant director of the budget, State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr.

Exercise of such rigid budgetary control was described as "revolutionary" in the history of state finances. Up to this time most departments have been given an appropriation and were allowed to spend the entire appropriation, regardless of the needs. Henceforth, this practice will not be allowed.

He authorized the head of each agency to name a budget officer whose duty it will be to keep a check on the financial operation of each department.

To Supervise Spending.

This officer will be a person experienced in dealing with finances and it will be his duty to set up and maintain a ledger showing the budget amounts for each object by class as approved by the Budget Bureau.

"It shall be the duty of all officials and employees of your state agency to submit to the designated budget officer in your agency any and all changes in salary rates, additional employment, persons released from employment and any other proposed obligations to be made against the state, whether by purchase, contract or otherwise," Governor Talmadge said in his instructions.

He added that the disbursing officer or officers of a state agency are not authorized to make expenditures for any obligations of the agency unless a copy of validation of the respective account is attached to the voucher signifying that it previously has been approved and in line with approved budget items.

In giving instructions on the

Villa Rica Fire Perils Whole Business Area

Flames Are Brought Under Control After Appeal for Help.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

VILLA RICA, Ga., Jan. 15.—Fire of undetermined origin swept a two-story building housing the Villa Rica theater, the Ralph Smith grocery and the Villa Rica cafe here tonight and threatened to spread to the adjoining Bank of Villa Rica and other properties in the business section.

The building, situated at the intersection of Candler and Montgomery streets, became a mass of high-leaping flames shortly after the fire was discovered in the cafe, operated by Cecil Hall.

Villa Rica fire department, consisting of one truck, fought the flames and then sent a help call to Carrollton, 15 miles to the west. The theater was closed when the fire broke out.

Shortly after midnight officials reported the fire was under control, and adjoining buildings were only slightly damaged.

Officials estimated damages will amount to approximately $40,000.

First '41 Traffic Fatality Recorded

The first traffic fatality within city limits since the first of the new year was recorded last night with the death in Grady hospital of Fred West, 30, Negro, of 521 Tattall street, S. W., who was struck by a truck in front of 526 Tattall street, near High street, Radio Patrolman W. E. Petty and E. G. Cowan reported. West died about 15 minutes after being admitted to the hospital.

Lee Neason, 23, Negro, of a Howell street address, alleged truck driver, was charged with reckless driving, accident.

Last year, there were four traffic deaths recorded for the corresponding period.

Negro Firemen Fear Loss of Railroad Jobs

bor Contracts Because of Diesels.

Fears of about 3,000 Negro railroad firemen in the south that they will be displaced through revision of existing labor contracts, because of introduction of Diesel engines, were accompanied by developments in various quarters yesterday.

In Washington, officials of the Southern Railway System, one of 19 railroads and terminals involved, conferred with representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers—the majority, white union organization—but declined to agree to the revision.

A meeting was held in Atlanta by Local No. 20, International Association of Railroad Employees, a majority, Negro union, on seeking an injunction, but no final decision was reached. It was said no court would enjoin an action not yet taken.

The central point was said to be that, since Negro firemen are not eligible to promotion as engineers under the existing contracts, they would be displaced entirely through the following four amendments proposed by the white brotherhood:

"1. Only promotable men will be employed for service as locomotive firemen or for service as helpers on other than steam power.

"2. When new runs or jobs are established in any service, only promotable firemen or helpers will be assigned to them.

"3. When permanent vacancies occur on established runs or jobs in any service, only promotable firemen or helpers will be assigned to them.

"4. It is understood that promotable firemen or helpers on other than steam power are those in line for promotion under the present rules and practices to the position of locomotive engineer."

PLENTY OF WORKERS—Scene before the employment office for the Army's Camp Gordon $2,500,000 hospital project, where hundreds of aspirants—including plenty of skilled workmen of every needed type—wait with varying degrees of patience in the chill for jobs to be allotted.

Labor Leaders Ask More Pay for City Mechanics

Mayor LeCraw yesterday exhibited a list of 107 white employees of the city making $75 a month or less as Albert Gossett, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, and Dewey L.
Johnson, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, urged increase in the pay of skilled mechanics working for the municipality.

The labor leaders emphasized that the mechanics submitted to salary slashes during depression years and that they now are receiving compensation far below union scales.

Gordon Project Explodes Labor Scarcity Myth

Hand for Building of Hospital.

By WILLARD COPE.

If there's any shortage of labor, either skilled or unskilled, they know nothing about it out at old Camp Gordon, where grading and clearing and other preliminary work for the Army's big $2,500,- 000 hospital is going forward mightily night and day.

There is, on the contrary, a surplus. Men by the hundreds and, on occasion, by the thousands, have been standing around day after day, waiting for jobs.
Many are getting them—about 1,600 workers of all types have been hired so far—but the ones with applications in, or trying to make application, find it a little chilly and trying.

At the peak of operations there may be a maximum employment potentiality of 4,000 persons—with three shifts going full blast —but this must wait upon many developments.

Once the clearing is completed, demand will rise for additional carpenters, now numbering 290.
Plumbers and steamfitters will be wanted; brick masons, electricians, more truck drivers, workers of numerous other skills will be sought.

No Labor Scarcity.
But from facts in hand, as many artisans as will be needed, and more, are available.

"We have experienced no scarcity of any type of labor," W. S.
MacDonald, assistant general manager and personnel director, declared unequivocally yesterday.
"We expect absolutely no trouble in filling our requirements."

Nor is this situation true only of the Camp Gordon area.
Another man of experience, W.
P. Conway, who is contractor, subcontractor, boss carpenter or just plain carpenter as the exigencies of the occasion demand, spoke to the same point.

"What is seen here," said Conway, who has been around construction enterprises for 30 years,
"is duplicated at Conley—at any other site of defense building. I know personally about these four places, and I've heard reliably about others."

"People have the mistaken idea there aren't enough skilled workmen—carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers, plasterers, electricians, and so on—to go around. As a result a lot of private construction is just not being done."

"The fact is that plenty of labor of all kinds exists and there is consequently no reason for delaying any work. Times are prosperous and all normal building ought to be undertaken. It will help the employment situation and make times even better."

Camp Gordon's hopefuls stand in a fairly large open square between the main highway and railroad tracks just south of the junction—on the spot where thousands entrained for the A. E. F. in the first World War. Here they stand, some good-humoredly, some grumpily, some just a little numb, facing a small structure, newly built, bearing the magic sign: "Employment Office."

Special policemen, wearing badges and swinging bills, but not uniformed, patrol the square ceaselessly. And not wholly without reason. Monday, for example, the men grew restive and pressed forward in a body about the small building, demanding more speed in circulating applications and providing employment.

It was necessary to run the area fire engine, clanging loudly, up and down the road for quite a spell to get everybody back in place.

Still, it was nobody's fault if the hundreds waiting jobs descended on the project before the jobs existed.

More come hourly. Many walk from the end of the Oglethorpe carline. Others bum rides or organize in small groups and travel to the scene in a member's car.
Parking is 10 cents. Hamburger stands are springing up; soft drink establishments, consisting in one case of a tent, a tub of bottled drinks with a board across the top, do a fairly thriving business.
Traffic is heavy, but its flow is assisted by a complete system of one-way routes.

Somerset Camp Gordon, which slept for 21 years with its tragic memories of producing thousands for death overseas, has come to life again.

But it has plenty of people to give it life. That's the point—the whole point—there are plenty of people. . . .

Holdup Pair Gets Heavy Sentences

Heavy sentences were meted out yesterday in Fulton superior court to two Negroes who held up a West Peachtree street liquor store November 30 and shot a policeman who sought to arrest them.

A jury found Lewis Mitchell guilty of robbery and fixed his sentence at from 10 to 15 years, while John Smith entered a plea of guilty before Judge E. E. Pomeroey while Mitchell was on trial and was sentenced to serve 20 years.

Smith admitted wounding City Policeman J. L. Carney and firing three times at Officer Paul Bynum. Both he and Mitchell got sentences of 24 months each for having pistols concealed without licenses, and Smith got two 10-year sentences for assault with intent to murder the two policemen.
A 20-year sentence imposed on him for robbery was made to run concurrent with the two assault sentences, as was his pistol sentences, totaling 20 years.

Stark Vetoes Move To Bar Political Foe

Shocked Solons Hear Him Assail Refusal To Seat Republican.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 15.
(P)—Missouri's outgoing Democratic governor vetoed a legislative refusal to seat his Republican successor today in a surprise
"farewell" message which shocked the assembly's Democratic majority into temporary silence and created still greater confusion in the muddled gubernatorial dispute.
Appearing before a hushed joint session, Governor Lloyd C. Stark denounced what he termed "a partisan set-up in this contest" of the right of Forrest C. Donnell to assume the governorship.

Specifically he vetoed a resolution creating a 10-member legislative committee to "investigate" Donnell's 3,613-vote victory over
Lawrence McDaniel, a St. Louis Democrat. The Democrats have a six-to-four edge on the committee.
"I cannot approve a resolution which provides for a partisan setup in this contest," Stark told the surprised legislators. "Any arrangement looking toward a recount of the ballots under the contest should be subject to an arrangement that both political parties would have fair and equal representation."

For nearly a half-minute after Stark finished speaking there was not a sound in the crowded chamber. Then applause broke out on the Republican side as the Governor made his way slowly down the aisle.
Recovering from the first shock of the surprise action, Democratic leaders immediately questioned Stark's veto power.

CEDARTOWN, Ga., Jan. 15.—
The Cedartown post office has shown a gain of 45 per cent in receipts in the last five years, according to Postmaster C. W.
Brumby. In 1935, receipts totaled $18,815.22, while the 1940 receipts were $27,334.14, a net gain of $8,- 518.92. Heavy December mailing enabled the local office to show a gain of $1,890.71 in 1940 over the 1939 total of $25,443.43.

Charges Served On Lieut. Heath

A copy of charges of conduct unbecoming an officer were served yesterday on Police Lieutenant Cuba Heath, suspended commander of the motorcycle traffic law enforcement squad, as a result of an alleged midnight ride with two waitresses.

Police Chief Hornsby served the papers in his office and Heath said he had no statement to make.
He was undecided whether or not he would seek an early trial at tomorrow night's police committee meeting or defer it until February 7.

The women complained that Heath struck them when they refused to accompany him and a companion named "Jimmie" to a cabin. They also said Heath was in uniform and that there was some drinking among the members of the party.

B. F. Simmons Shorn of Rank In Road Patrol

New Commander Names J. J. Elliott as Acting Captain.

Captain B. Frank Simmons, of the Georgia State Patrol, was reduced to ranks yesterday by the new commander, John E. Goodwin, on his first day's occupancy of the office. Price Reed, court constable of Gainesville, was named deputy commissioner, a post which had been served by Simmons, without pay, in the previous administration, with the salary appropriation going to maintain radio facilities.

J. J. Elliott, a patrolman of the Atlanta police force, was named acting captain to succeed Simmons. He formerly was a member of the patrol, but resigned.

Major Lon E. Sullivan, who walked from the commissioner's post Tuesday when Goodwin, accompanied by "a dozen large men," gave him a note from Governor Talmadge saying Goodwin was his successor, made it clear yesterday he had not resigned.

"I offered to resign if Governor Talmadge would maintain the merit system inaugurated in my administration," said Major Sullivan. "But he wouldn't do it."

He also said it would be necessary, if the law were followed, for the Public Safety Commission, composed of the Governor, Highway Board chairman, Revenue Commission chairman and one sheriff, to hold a hearing and discharge him for cause, and then appoint a successor.

Major Sullivan said he hadn't completed his plans, but indicated he regarded the whole question now as purely academic.

Sergeant A. L. Bagley, of the Gainesville state patrol station, announced he had tendered his resignation because "the department is definitely in politics now." He said his resignation had not been accepted, but that Trooper P. B. Weeks had been named sergeant of the Gainesville district.

It was announced that Talmadge had named Sheriff Carey Bittick, of his native county, Monroe, as a member of the commission, succeeding Sheriff H. L. Padgett, of Appling county.

Reorganization Plans Rushed By Talmadge

ministration to pass reorganization bills in order to get rid of holdover appointees from another administration. Such action was the purpose of yesterday's reorganization bills.

Administration bills were introduced in the senate by Charles D. Redwine, of Fayetteville; John K. Whaley, of McRae; Homer Edensfield, of Kingsland; R. P. Campbell, of Covington; H. B. "Hell Bent" Edwards, of Valdosta, and J. H. Milhollin, of Broxton. They were introduced in the house by Randall Evans Jr., of Thomson; Herschel Lovett, of Dublin; W. R. Bleasdale, of Quitman; J. W. Culpepper, of Fayetteville, and J. Robert Elliott, of Columbus.

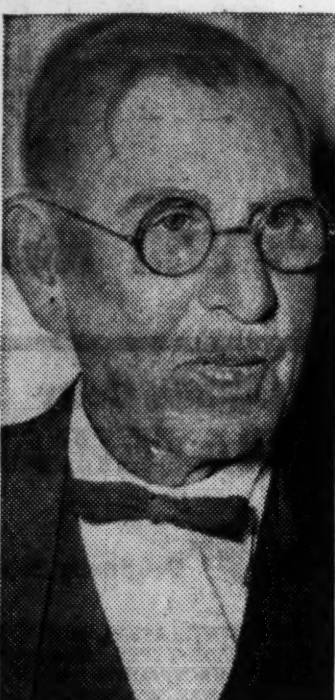

The bills to recreate the State Highway Board would oust W. Lint Miller as chairman. It provides for a chairman and two members to serve concurrently with the Governor, each from a different section of the state. The chairman would receive a flat salary of $5,000 a year and the other members $10 a day when working. All three members will receive traveling expenses. It also provides that offices of all members appointed under the present

The Gentleman--

From Douglas ... From Brooks ... From Sandersville

Representative A. A. Fowler, of Douglas County.

Senator Marvin L. Gross, Sandersville (20th District).

Although farming really is his first love, Alpha A. Fowler, of Douglasville, is also engaged in the banking and motion picture business. Just now he has a fourth occupation—helping formulate the state's laws by representing Douglas county in the lower house. This is his fifth time in the house and he has served twice in the senate. His hobby is fox hunting. He's 54, has four children, and his major aim is to make Georgians realize and receive "their money's worth."

act of March 3, 1937 would be terminated.

Following his inauguration Tuesday, Talmadge appointed three members of the board, but said two of them would not become commissioners until there were "legal vacancies." He did this under a special code section which allows him to authorize agents to conserve the property of the state.

A bill amending the act creating the Department of Public Safety was introduced in each house to permit the issuance of family drivers' licenses.

It set a fee of $1 for the head of the family, with the wife of every applicant receiving a license without additional cost. Dependent children, living at home would be issued licenses for 25 cents. It calls for separate licenses with distinctive colorings for each category.

The bills to abolish the State Board of Penal Corrections proposed to create the office of state superintendent of prison farms to carry on the duties now performed by a three-man board. The office would be a gubernatorial appointment and pay $5,000 a year.

Members of the present board, established in March, 1939, are Turner Brice, Grover C. Byars and Dr. John R. Lewis.

Property of the state radio commission including station WGST would be turned over to the board of regents if the proposals to abolish that body are successful. WGST

A member of the house from 1923-28, W. R. Bleasdale, the gentleman from Brooks, is back again on his steady attendance since 1935. The man from Barney isn't here just to sit around, smoke cigars and take it easy. He wants to get into fiery discussions and fight for the things he thinks the state needs.

A farmer, married 56 years, the 77-year-old solon has six children. He likes to raise cotton, corn, peanuts and tobacco on his south Georgia plantation.

would be operated by the regents for the benefit of Georgia Tech. The bill gives the regents the power to lease or sell the station if the arrangement satisfies both the Governor and Tech's president.

The new state hospital authority set out in the reorganization bill would have the same functions and duties as the present body but a new set of officers. Members, who would receive no salaries but get expenses, would be the Governor, state auditor and attorney general or an assistant named by the Governor.

The bills to abolish the present housing board provide that the new board shall consist of the Governor, secretary of state, state superintendent of schools, chairman of the board of regents, and chairman of the state planning board. In the event there is no planning board chairman, the state auditor shall be a member.

Regulations governing the granting of paroles and conditional pardons were drastically tightened in bills introduced in both houses. Essentially provisions are as follows:

1. That no parole or conditional pardon shall thereafter be granted any prisoner convicted of a violation of the criminal laws of this state until he shall have served at least the minimum sentence fixed by law as punishment for the crime for which he has been convicted.

2. No prisoner serving a life sentence shall be granted a parole until he shall have served at least three full years under his sentence.

3. The Prison and Parole Commission, with the approval of the Governor, shall have full power to fix and prescribe the rules and regulations under which applications for parole or conditional pardon shall be made and heard, but no parole shall be granted save upon the recommendation of every member of the commission and on approval of the Governor, and then only on the prison record of the inmate and his history before his conviction for crime.

4. No parole shall be granted any prisoner by the commission until it shall have satisfactory evidence that if said prisoner shall be released on parole he will be given honest employment and a good home, and, if he is unable to labor, that he will not become an object of public charity.

Senator J. A. Drake, of Colquitt, introduced a bill to abolish the poll tax in Georgia.

The senate was in session not more than 30 minutes—enough time for the bills to be read and referred to committees.

Senate President Redwine announced his committee probably would not be ready for work until next week, since the general assembly is expected to adjourn for the inauguration of President Roosevelt and probably will not convene until next Wednesday.

Throng Seek Jobs in New State Regime

Talmadge's Aides Find Little Time for Their Duties.

Department heads placed in office Tuesday by Governor Talmadge were so swamped by job-seekers yesterday they had little time to acquaint themselves with their own duties.

"It looks as though the crowds that came up to see the Governor inaugurated stayed over to hunt jobs," ruefully remarked Brick S. Miller, new director of the State Department of Public Welfare.

The gray, bespectacled Buena Vista farmer-lawyer estimated he had job applications at the rate of "three a minute" during the day. "He said he had almost no time to consider whom he would fire or hire."

No less hectic was the scene at the Revenue Department, where Jack Forrester, youthful Cordele attorney, was plunging into his new work as revenue commissioner while his outer offices overflowed with jobseekers.

Forrester announced he had fired "two or three employees" and had appointed Charles H. Collins, of Atlanta, as head of the alcoholic beverage division, succeeding L. C. Grove. He named Allen Darden, of Cumming, as director of the income tax division and replaced T. W. Williams with W. E. Joiner, of Dublin, as acting director of the motor vehicle division.

At the Wildlife Division, Zach Cravey, the new department head and commissioner of natural resources, not only was harassed by jobseekers—some of whom had been waiting in line for six hours—but he said the division lacked sufficient money to carry on its essential services.

Cravey announced the appointment of C. C. James, of Marietta, as superintendent of fisheries. He had been connected with the department for many years prior to the Rivers administration.

Walter Dyal, of McRae, for 13 years in the turpentine business, said he was too busy acquainting himself as director of the State Forestry Division, his first state job, to make appointments. R. F. Burch, of Eastman, likewise had his hands full interviewing job applicants in his office as director of the Parks, Historic Sites and Monuments Division.

THREE SEEK OFFICE.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 15. Three candidates are canvassing Bartow county this week for the post left vacant by the recent death of Ordinary R. M. Gaines. Those seeking the position are C. L. Collins Jr. and W. B. Moss, of Cartersville, and James H. Barton, of Pine Log.

The Army IN GEORGIA

FORT BENNING, Ga., Jan. 15. Companies "A" and "B" of the 193d Tank Battalion and an advance detachment of the 101st Antitank Battalion, two National Guard battalions that recently were brought into the federal service for one year's training and assigned to Fort Benning, reached the post from home stations yesterday afternoon.

Upon arrival, the companies of the 193d Tank Battalion were assigned quarters in the winterized tent camp constructed for the battalion in the new cantonment area of the Second Armored Division.

Composing the 193d Tank Battalion are National Guard companies from Georgia, Alabama, Texas and Colorado. The entire 101st Anti-tank Battalion is from Albany, N. Y.

Company A of the 193d Tank Battalion, composed of five officers and 71 enlisted men, under command of Captain W. D. Wilkingsham, came from Forsyth, Ga. Company B came from Ozark, Ala. Both traveled overland by motor.

500 RESERVISTS DUE TO REPORT AT BENNING

FORT BENNING, Ga., Jan. 15. Four hundred and seventy-seven white and 23 Negro Regular Army enlisted reservists will be inducted for active duty at the induction station here between February 5 and 15.

All are former enlisted men of the Regular Army who elected to join the reserve at discharge. After their papers are completed at the post's induction center, white reservists will go directly to the reception center at Fort McPherson. Due to their previous military training, they then will be assigned directly to units instead of being sent to replacement centers for training.

A total of approximately 5,438 Regular Army reservists are being called to active duty in the Fourth Corps Area.

Atlanta Youth Leaves To Join Canadian RAF

Roland Purcell Wants To Drop Bomb on Hitler's Retreat.

An Atlanta youth, Roland W. Purcell, left yesterday for Montreal, Canada, where he expects to join the Royal Air Force and hopes to fly across to England and drop his first bomb "right on Hitler's retreat."

He plans to join two former Army buddies already in the Canadian RAF, with whom he enlisted in the United States Army in Atlanta three years ago and served in Panama and Hawaii.

Purcell wrote to the recruiting office of the RAF in Montreal several weeks ago and received word that he would have to establish residence in Canada in order to join.

He left yesterday at noon and will stop in Chattanooga to break the news of his departure and say goodbye to his best girl friend, before continuing to Montreal.

The two buddies already in the RAF are Robert Thurmond and Jim Westfield, of North Carolina. Purcell was a gunner's sergeant while serving with them in Panama and Hawaii, and the three called themselves "The Three Musketeers," he said.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Purcell, formerly of Atlanta, and lived at 488 Ashby street.

Greek, Italian Armies Slowed By Snow, Cold

Duce's Troops Reported Driven Back on Berati Front.

ATHENS, Jan. 15. (AP)—Snowstorms and severe cold impeded military operations in Albania today, but the government reported Greek warriors again drove back their Italian foes in a thrust toward Berati.

Greek sources said the Italians, after two unsuccessful counterattacks, withdrew to attempt stands in areas affording "natural" fortified positions north of Klisura, which fell last week.

An Associated Press correspondent at the front reported "rickety old cars and farmers with trains of stubborn mules" formed a supply line to move food and ammunition to Greek soldiers.

This line operated, he wrote, through wild country "where the best roads are only ruts frozen on the mountainsides."

The unfavorable weather limited fighting along the entire Albanian front to sharp local engagements, the Greeks said. Both Italian and Greek planes were reported grounded.

Site for City Airport Chosen for Carrollton

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. CARROLLTON, Ga., Jan. 15.—City council has winnowed from several suggested sites the acreage it wants for a municipal airport, and is preparing to buy the land, on the Villa Rica highway, for $3,000, sharing the cost with a fund to be raised by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The decision was reached with the understanding that the government will finance development of the field. A recent dispatch from Washington had said federal aid up to $37,500 would be available for a Carrollton airport if the city furnishes the land.

AYERS HEADS FLIERS. CEDARTOWN, Ga., Jan. 15.—Ralph Ayers has been re-elected president of the Cedartown Fliers' Club, with Lloyd Treadaway and Lester C. Litesay as vice president and treasurer. Every member of the club has completed his solo flight and is well on the way toward a private pilot's license.

Gannett Lauds Defense Policy Of Roosevelt

Says Nation at War 'To All Intent and Purposes.'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Frank E. Gannett, former aspirant for the Republican Presidential nomination, declared last night that "to all intents and purposes we are in the war now," and urged support for President Roosevelt.

Gannett, Rochester, N. Y., owner of several newspapers and often a critic of the administration, made the remarks in an address to the Committee of One Hundred.

"Although I opposed Mr. Roosevelt and still do," Gannett said, "I take my hat off to him for the way in which he has handled the job and I hope we all will get behind him and support him."

Gannett said he was "gravely concerned" over the situation. "To all intents and purposes we are in the war now," he asserted, "although no war has been declared and probably won't be."

"What I fear most of all is not the huge government debt we're building up and not the lives that will be lost; I am concerned over the possibility that this will mean the end of our present form of government."

Two Japanese Fined For Canal Zone Camera

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Captain Eiichi Sanda and Fourth Engineer Kenzo Yamamoto, of the Japanese liner Teikoku Maru, were arrested today when a guard noticed an unloaded small camera showing in a bundle of laundry Yamamoto was carrying out of a stateroom as the ship proceeded through the Panama Canal.

While the New York-bound liner was held at the Gatun locks, the men were arraigned, pleaded guilty to a violation of an order forbidding the use of cameras in the Zone and were fined $25 each.

TO EXTEND MAIN. COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 15.—C. L. Mullin, receiver for Phenix City water works, announced today the extension and placing of a larger water line in a section of Phenix City. Mullin said he had been granted permission to purchase 1,500 feet of six-inch pipe. The four-inch pipe now serving a small portion of the section will be moved to the end of the line.

Four Georgia Women Given Jobs in Army

Three Hostesses, Librarian Named for Fort Benning.

Appointment of Miss Rose Marie Smith, of Atlanta, former acting assistant director of WPA activities as senior hostess for the 4th Division, stationed at Fort Benning, was announced yesterday.

Miss Nellie Burr Mitchell, of Waycross, was appointed junior hostess, a position she will share with Miss Mary Eunice Willis, home economics instructor at Reinhardt College, Waleska, Ga. Mrs. Ruth Hull Lummus, present assistant librarian in the public library of Columbus, and graduate of Washington Seminary, was appointed librarian for the division.

Army officials announced the four hostess "recruits" were selected from among some 2,000 applications for the job.

In conjunction with the appointment of hostesses, the Army announced work is under way on the new hostess house and the service building area near the division theater. It is expected that the first of these newly appointed hostesses will be ordered to work before the completion of the new building.

A native of Illinois and formerly from Savannah, prior to employment with the WPA, Miss Smith has attended Lombard College and an Atlanta business college.

Conant Urges Film Executive U. S. Pledge To Defeat Axis

Harvard President Says Nation Must 'Risk All' in Crisis.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 15.—(UP)—President James B. Conant, of Harvard University, said yesterday the United States must be prepared to "risk all"—even war—to insure the defeat of the Axis powers.

Addressing a meeting of the Cambridge Chamber of Commerce, Conant said those persons who would stop short of war in helping the British are "gambling with the future of the country."

He said he realized that to recommend a course that might lead to war was "perhaps the most serious course a citizen can take," but added that "the future of this country, if the Axis powers are not defeated, is so bleak that I would risk all that may be necessary to insure the defeat of the totalitarian states."

The defeat of Germany and Italy is "essential to the maintenance of our way of life," Conant said, and the United States should "pledge itself to this end without reservation, recognizing the possibility that this may in the future involve belligerent action by ourselves."

Film Executive Files Reply to Solon's Attack

Denies Existence of Propaganda in Movie Industry.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Answering Senator Burton K. Wheeler's charge of "propaganda for war" in the motion picture industry, A. J. Richard, editor of Paramount News, said last night in a letter to the Montana Democrat that he was "unaware of the existence of any such propaganda on the part of the motion picture industry and am confident that no such purpose exists."

Richard referred to Wheeler's statement in a press conference Monday that "the motion picture industry is doing a terrific job of war propaganda."

"Speaking for our own news-reel," Richard said, "I stand on our record. Paramount News has consistently presented and will continue to present both sides of all controversial topics vital to the interests of the American people."

Answering Wheeler's inquiry as to whether his reply to President Roosevelt's recent fireside chat would be carried in the news-reels, Richard said, "We do not plan to release your recent answer to the President's broadcast to which you refer, as we have already released more recent utterances of yours on the same subject."

Nazis Seek To Make Vienna Fashion Center

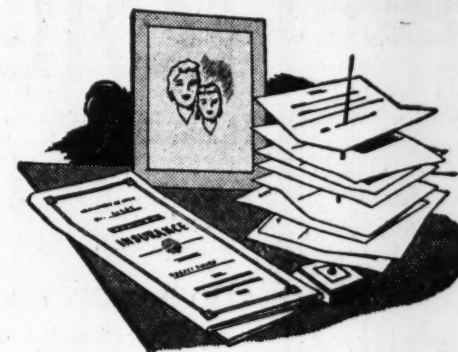

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Commerce Department said today that Germany was seeking to have Vienna supplant Paris as the world fashion center.

The department reported that an attempt first was made to put Berlin ahead of Vienna in fashions, but "the public response was negligible."

'False Orders' Blamed for French Defeat

Nazis Wore Military Garb of Allies Porter Reveals.

(Editor's Note: Associated Press Correspondent Roy P. Porter, who covered the blitzkrieg in France and then worked for six months under the German military rule of the occupied zone, relates amazing details of the French army's internal collapse and anecdotes of the "phony war" period in this third of four stories.)

By ROY P. PORTER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—French military men declare that German agents, sometimes working behind the French lines in French uniforms during actual fighting, played a tremendous role in the military campaign which resulted in the occupation of two-thirds of France.

The French called this secret work espionage and sabotage. The Germans regarded it as the same systematic campaign of exterior and interior forces working together which brought German occupation of other lands.

False Orders Delivered.

It was harder to recognize in France because the counter-espionage service shut off all information with the declaration of war and zealous censors clamped down.

Many French officers say they are sure there was a gigantic spy ring operating inside the French army.

One young French officer whom I know, commanding a tank unit near Sedan, was maneuvering his equipment from position to position in early June fighting in a determined effort to halt the advance of the German panzer divisions.

In the midst of the battle, a French army motorcycle with sidecar raced up to him. A man in French captain's uniform excitedly told him he had new orders from field headquarters and handed him what appeared to be an official command to withdraw. It was signed and stamped and, when I saw it later, it looked exactly as an army order should.

Yet, when the withdrawal had been effected—leaving a wide gap between the French supporting units through which the Germans poured undeterred—French field headquarters reprimanded the tank commander severely for abandoning his position without direct orders. The young officer produced the paper and the brigade commander pronounced it false.

Train Halted.

The Germans moved through northern France toward the English channel in the westward push. British soldiers at Rennes received an order to load and evacuate a trainload of heavy and light ammunition. Working all night, in continuous shifts, they had the shells ready to move early on a Saturday morning. The order came through the train was to leave at 10 a. m.

The British went about other business but were surprised to wake up Sunday and find the train still standing in the yards. The same morning a squadron of German bombers came roaring over, made straight for the munitions train, scored a number of direct hits and destroyed it.

Several days later, intelligence officers discovered that during the night of Saturday to Sunday, after the train's departure had been delayed by false orders, someone had painted the tops of the freight cars white, giving the German aviators a perfect target.

"Never Suspected It."

One man I know—an Alsatian—was connected with the mechanical department of a newspaper. I saw him several days before the Germans entered Paris, when he told me he was getting ready to again flame erupted in sheets from all the carrier's guns until, with smoke hanging over her flight deck, she looked like a moving monster of fire. Bombs fell to port and starboard; at bow and stern.

Warship Hit By Nazi Bombs Reaches Port

Another bomb crashed, causing casualties—including one RAF officer who had come to sea, as he termed it, "just for a week's rest." Windows in the entrance to the captain's glass-enclosed bridge were shattered by bomb blasts and the explosions of the ship's guns. A dive bomber swooped in front of the bridge on the starboard side; a bomb threw a column of water over the bridge and the blast blew me down the hatchway to aviation intelligence quarters one deck below. A sheet of fire burned my face.

Another German dived head-on for the carrier. The bomb crashed the side of the carrier. "We are hit," mumbled an officer, his face pressed against the deck floor.

Very Little Rest. Between 2 p. m. and 7:30 there never were more than a few minutes free of the sound of projectiles crashing about the Illustrious, her guncrews flinging shells on and on at the attacking planes in the face of machinegun fire.

Just before dusk small columns of smoke poured from the flight deck. Shell casings and bomb splinters formed a strange carpet there.

In the engine room the men used alternate facilities to keep the Illustrious going steadily on eastward to the nearest Mediterranean port.

Rear Admiral A. L. St. George Lyster watched the Germans dive in and shouted orders to his aides while shrapnel and machinegun bullets peppered about him. On the bridge below Captain Dennis Boyd puffed his pipe and again ordered.

All hands to action stations. Three Germans dived in and dropped torpedoes; a moment before, the captain had ordered full speed, and the torpedoes cut harmlessly through the water a few feet off the stern.

During all the struggle by the Illustrious, the British planes which had taken off her decks had made the Germans pay.

The final score in Nazi planes shot down was 12.

Soon after the Illustrious reached port, fire squads had extinguished a small fire in her interior while shipwrights plugged the bomb holes, getting her ready to go to sea again.

The dead on the Illustrious were taken out for burial at sea in the areas where they had fought. The wounded were sent to shore hospitals.

Even in port, German and Italian planes have tried to sink the Illustrious. They have found her guns still firing.

Throngs Watch RAF and Nazis In Night Battle

Raiders and Defenders Dart and Dive in Midnight Blitz.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—(Thursday) (P)—London had a minor bedtime blitz air-raid just before midnight and early today—the first air attack after dark since Sunday, but the show put on by the German bombers and challenging British night fighters surpassed any previous midnight performance over the capital.

A few insignificant fires flared briefly. The real show, which thousands poured into the streets to see, was the smoky vapor patterns woven upon the crystal-clear heavens by the raiders and the darting, circling, machinegunning fighters.

The raid began at an unusually late hour for attacks on London, and the rattle of machinegun fire overhead indicated the fighters were in action.

The "all-clear" sounded during the early morning hours.

Earlier the British summoned snow and mist for attacks on Nazi bases in German-occupied Norway.

The Business Opportunity column in the Want Ads of The Constitution furnishes a fertile field for small investment and profitable effort.

Italians Make Mistake, Drop Food on Greeks

Fliers Didn't Know Fascists Weren't There Any More.

KLISURA, Albania, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Italian bombers, believing they were over their own lines, today dropped sacks of food and supplies in this sector held by the Greeks.

Yelling "manna from heaven," the Greeks hurriedly gathered up 12 sacks of food after the Fascist planes roared away.

The Greeks had flattened themselves in a narrow ditch along a road and were waiting for the familiar roar of bursting bombs. It did not come.

Instead there were 12 dull thuds. The planes were hardly away before the Greek soldiers began cheering. They gathered up the sacks filled with bread, butter, chocolate and salami which the pilots dropped, believing, their own men were holding this section of the road to Berat.

U.S. Warplanes Fly to Britain In Few Hours

Bombers Leave After Breakfast, Land at Teatime.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—United States-made bombers have achieved a breakfast-to-teatime schedule and set new trans-Atlantic record in delivery flights to England, it was disclosed today.

The prewar record for trans-Atlantic flights between Newfoundland and the British Isles was set by the Cambrai, Imperial Airways flying boat, in September, 1937, when she flew from Botwood to Foynes, Ireland, in 10 hours and 33 minutes.

"That mark has been broken time and again," said an authoritative aviation source in partial disclosure of speed achieved in the ferrying which the British hope will bring hundreds of planes by midsummer.

This source would not, however, divulge the new record nor say who holds it. It is about 2,000 miles from Newfoundland to Britain, the shortest route from North America.

It is understood that some of the machines—limited to long-range bombers—have been piloted by Americans and Canadians, all volunteers.

The planes are said to be Lockheed Hudsons, Boeing 17s, Lockheed Vega Venturas and Consolidated flying boats.

The Balkan Enigma

Unequivocal is the statement of a high Turkish official that his country will declare war if German troops cross the borders of Bulgaria. In a strange world of strained neutrality and international trickery the attitude of the Turkish government has been one of steadfast purpose and complete frankness.

The statement, together with other significant actions, hints that Berlin's purpose in the Balkans has become evident to observers in that part of the world and that an effort is being made to forestall that move by diplomatic warning. Almost simultaneously with the Turkish declaration came the Tass announcement that Russia had not been approached by Germany about the Bulgarian situation, nor had Bulgaria asked Russia's advice. Then came the report that British officers—army, navy and air force—were in Ankara for staff talks with the Turkish general staff.

From Bulgaria itself came the statement of Premier Philoff which gave strong indication that country would permit entry of German troops under protest and would fight against entry into the country of Turkish, Greek or British troops operating against the Nazis. It is probable Philoff seeks in this manner to keep his country from becoming the battleground of an Anglo-Turkish and German conflict in the Balkans. He again emphasized the official Bulgarian position which demands revision of the Treaty of Neuilly.

The Paris suburb on the Seine river in which the treaty formally ending Bulgaria's participation in World War I was signed thus re-entered the world stage. Signed in 1919, it has been a troublesome factor in the Balkans ever since. It is not strange that Bulgaria leans towards the Axis, since revisionist agitation has for years been directed toward the Allied powers and Rumania, Yugoslavia and Greece. Neither is it strange that Bulgaria will not resist if Germany enters the country, for by the terms of the Treaty of Neuilly she was restricted to some 33,000 rifles, an army of 20,000 and voluntary enlistments calling for 12 years' service. Thus the country had no chance to train troops until this condition was changed by unilateral action in recent years. Bulgaria still demands an outlet to the Aegean sea—seeks to regain the port of Dedeagach lost at the close of World War I—and a German victory will obtain this goal, while a German defeat would not make her position any worse than it is today.

The increasingly grave position of the Italian forces, with the possibility that the British will have large forces free for action in the Near East within a month, may force Hitler's hand into a Balkan action as a diversion despite the serious handicap of winter weather. By this he could hope to rescue the Italian army in Albania, seize control of the Dardanelles, and obtain freedom of movement into the Aegean by way of the Black sea, the straits and a protected shoreline similar to the positions controlled along the Norwegian coast.

Against this possibility, however, must be counterposed the traditional reluctance of military men to engage in a conflict on two fronts and the necessity for a strong effort against England itself this spring. However, this may be counterbalanced by the strategic advantages, by the preponderance of manpower possessed by Germany and the necessity for keeping Italy in the war.

The answer should be known within weeks.

The melancholy Dane is given his choice of one cake of hand soap or a shaving stick a month—hardly enough to clean up the local situation exposed in "Hamlet."

This plane production lag brings to mind the halcyon days of ocean flying, when a hopper would shoot for Constantinople and fetch up in a Welsh meadow.

The wage scale of workmen repairing the capitol roof dumfounds our congressmen, who assumed that only fences ran into that money.

Two-Way Program

A double-action effort to reduce cotton production for 1941 and, at the same time, increase domestic consumption of cotton, is announced by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard. This effort is placed upon an entirely voluntary basis and does not, in any way, affect the conservation and parity programs now in operation under the AAA.

The new plan is simple. It offers to cotton farmers who voluntarily reduce their cotton acreage below that required by the parity program, cotton stamps, which may be used to purchase cotton goods. The Surplus Marketing Administration will provide these stamps and has agreed to redeem up to 25 million dollars worth.

It is hoped that, under this plan, the cotton crop for 1941 will be reduced an additional 1,000,000 bales.

That there is drastic need for all the reduction possible is self-evident. Due to many causes, which were climaxed with the war, the export market for American cotton has almost disappeared. It is today not more than one-third of what it was prior to the outbreak of war and, even before that time, it had been tremendously reduced because of the handicapping tariff policy of the United States under former administrations and because of the growing competition of foreign-produced cotton.

The only hope for reduction of the too-heavy surplus—government stocks alone now total nearly 12,000,000 bales—is by reducing production and increasing domestic consumption.

If, by this new plan, a million or more bales can be lopped off the 1941 crop, if the acreage taken out of cotton is put into more gardens and food and feed production, thus improving living standards in the cotton areas of the south, and if several million dollars worth of cotton goods can thus be marketed among our own people, the benefit to this section will be inestimable.

It looks, on its face, like an excellent plan. The only thing needed for its success is co-operation by the cotton producers themselves. Such co-operation will, undoubtedly, be willingly given.

"Fight to the last man!" was the Duce's ringing message to the defenders of Bardia. There appears, though, to have been a nuance lost in transmission.

They Hold the Answer

Seventy-two men and women, convicted of various crimes by the courts of Georgia, received pardons from Governor Rivers, as he left office.

Numerous theories as to the reason behind this wholesale exercise of the pardoning power, by the outgoing Governor, have been advanced. Nearly everybody in Georgia has an idea about it and has expressed that idea.

As a matter of fact, the answer to that question "Why?" is known to 72 people. The 72 who were pardoned. And they will give that answer through the months and years ahead. That answer will be spoken in the manner of life these erstwhile prisoners follow.

Should many of the 72 return to the ways of crime, critics of their benefactor, Governor Rivers, will find circumstantial evidence in support of their criticism.

But, should the 72 prove, by living the lives of good and honorable citizens, that the pardons were deserved, they will most conclusively prove that the executive clemency extended was wise and was deserved.

The answer lies only in the behavior of the 72. All other theories are but speculation.

Editorial Symposium

WAR CLOUDS OVER BULGARIA

As Stalin gives no indication of his attitude toward Hitler's nodus operandi in Bulgaria, American newspapers consider the wider aspects of the whole Balkan situation, see threats of the embroilment of Turkey into the European struggle, and visualize a drive by Nazi troops into the Grecian front. Meanwhile, the WILMINGTON NEWS sets forth the possibility that "Hitler plans only an occupation of Bulgaria with Russian connivance, at this time, to consolidate further his position in that region."

"If and when the Germans occupy Bulgaria, the most popular guess is that Hitler will command the Greeks, on pain of invasion, to quit bullying the Italians and to get out of Albania," says the BOSTON HERALD, while the KANSAS CITY TIMES reasons, "A Nazi occupation of Bulgaria, similar to that already effected in Rumania, would open the way either for a flank attack upon Greece or for a drive against Great Britain's other ally in the Balkans, Turkey."

At the same time, the LOS ANGELES TIMES reports, "Some experts profess to believe that the Germans plan a thrust at the Dardanelles in an effort to get the British navy concentrated in the eastern Mediterranean, the real intention being to start the long-promised invasion of the British Isles as soon as the navy is occupied there." However, the DALLAS NEWS suggests that "The Albanian problem is doubtless worrying Hitler, who can see a possible back door swinging open, a door through which bombing attacks can be loosed on his eastern industrial installations."

The HARTFORD COURANT visualizes two possibilities: "A sweep across the plains of Bulgaria would bring the German army that much nearer to the vital oil fields in Iraq and menace the British control of the Mediterranean at the Suez. A successful thrust into Yugoslavia would permit a flanking movement against Greece, thus relieving the pressure on the Italian forces in Albania."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

PICTURE ON THE HILL WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—A fairly cut-and-dried congressional picture already appears to be emerging from the first turmoil over the President's lease-lend bill to aid Britain. All prognosticators agree the house will soon approve the bill, although the high percentage of indecision among the anonymous membership may result in some amendments. A vociferous senate minority is preparing to talk long and loudly in opposition, but even in the senate the auguries are pretty favorable.

The senate will be the chief arena of battle because talk is the opposition's only weapon and the house rules do not permit its use. And, on the whole, the senate situation is rather better than it was in the autumn of 1939, when the President demanded repeal of the arms embargo.

GEORGE TO CAPTAIN FIGHT

In the first place, the death of Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, has made Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. Pittman, in legislative combat, was both touchy and unreliable. George, an extremely able man, is, of course, personally out of sympathy with the President, and has sometimes inclined not to support his foreign policy. But he is an old and close friend of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, and he and Hull have passed many hours discussing the harsh realities of the world situation at unnoted breakfast and late afternoon conferences at Hull's quiet hotel apartment. George is now prepared to captain the senate fight for the bill. He will be far more effective than Pittman would have been.

Then, too, since George is without Pittman's touchiness, he will accept the help the captain of a big fight always needs, but which Pittman often resented or rejected.

The general system of senate leadership has been greatly improved, on the motion of Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley. The elevation of the foxy Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, to be president pro tem of the senate, has formally associated him with Barkley. Barkley, Harrison and the remarkably shrewd Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, now form a working triumvirate.

STRONG MAJORITY

Finally, although the election did not reduce the isolationist bloc, and brought into the senate such men as "Curly" Brooks, of Illinois, it did strengthen the President's influence among the rank-and-file Democrats. A surprising number of Republicans, following serious Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, are ready to go along if, as expected, certain amendments are adopted. Thus the opposition to the bill will have to buck a strong majority strongly led.

Such are the basic facts of the congressional situation. The daily excitements reported in the headlines do not change them. Indeed, they only provide an interesting demonstration of congressional behaviorism, not wholly lacking in ironic humor. All the motions are being gone through as determined oppositions always do, the opposition is organizing closely. As opposition leaders in variably do, Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, has announced that he and his friends will never, never filibuster. And as opposition attacks generally are, the opposition attack is primarily a series of sideswipes.

Almost nothing has been said on the basic issue, whether this country should, or should not, aid Britain by all methods short of war. Instead, the President's bill has been denounced for three reasons: (1) That the British will have ample cash, and thus need no help; (2) that the bill confers too broad discretionary powers on the President; and (3) that the President has taken the "road to war" without first exploring the possibilities of peace.

The rumors of British riches, now causing some havoc in the house, will presumably be set at rest by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. He has intended for more than a month to present to congress a simplified version of the British balance sheet given him by Sir Frederick Phillips on behalf of the exchequer. It will show the British running out of free dollar exchange and realizable securities, but with some remaining frozen and semi-frozen assets in this country. Gradual liquidation of these so-called "direct investments" will be promised by Morgenthau. The first argument will be answered. As for the second, the ablest possible answer has already been made to it by Wendell L. Willkie. Certain amendments limiting the President's powers, such as a requirement of a certificate of necessity from the chiefs of the defense services, may be adopted to meet the second argument still more effectively.

CURIOUS VANDENBERG CASE

Finally, there is the third argument, the clamor for a negotiated peace. This has already had some odd results. Not to mention Verne Marshall, or Senator Wheeler's difficulty with peace terms, there is the curious case of Senator Vandenberg. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg is the author of a whole book, "The Trail of a Tradition," devoted to flowery compliments to the chiefs of the League of Nations. Yet Senator Vandenberg now takes the position that, if peace in Europe can be negotiated, he will consent to a United States guarantee of the peace settlement—precisely the feature of League covenant that caused its defeat. Even the President disapproves of such far-reaching foreign entanglements.

Among the opposition, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, is one of the few to take a wholly consistent line. He has been strong for national defense, and deserted his friends to vote for the draft. He has acknowledged that German victory would force this country to retire behind an economic, political and strategic Chinese wall and to take a brutal reduction in the standard of living. Yet he has argued this was the best course. He is almost alone in facing the facts squarely and accepting the disagreeable implications of his stand, simply because the implications are so very disagreeable. And this is the best proof that the President's bill will pass in the end.

Plans For Vacation.

Next summer, if the exchequer will permit, the Jones vacation will be spent in Canada. That, at least, is the idea now rattling around in the imagination of this particular member of the family.

There are a number of reasons. For one thing, the rate of exchange is advantageous. A United States dollar is worth $1.10 in Canada, now, so that amounts to about a 10 per cent discount on all we spend in the Dominion.

Another reason is that, if we're going to spend vacation money anyway, we might as well spend it where it will best help the one big job now facing all Americans, as well as Canadians and Britishers. That is, the elimination of a nuisance named Hitler. And the United States dollars we spend in Canada help, just that much, to increase the credits of Canada in this country. And those credits, today, are used by Canada to buy, from us, materials for war. So, our few dollars might eventually be converted into a handful of bullets to spit out of a British fighter plane's machine guns against the Messerschmidt. Which would be entirely satisfactory.

Personal Reasons.

Then, it would be lots of fun to retrace some of the paths I trod as a young man, during six years spent in Ontario. And take the family along.

It will be, if we go, the first revisiting of those old scenes since, a carefree young bachelor, I came south some 30 or more years ago. I'd like to take another steamship trip down the St. Lawrence, through the Thousand Islands.

I'd like to walk up Yonge street, and see the good shows I saw there and the morning when I tramped through deep snow to the railroad depot, when street cars couldn't run and cutters were not for hire, and found myself the only passenger on a train which tried to buck the drifted snow and made 16 miles in five hours and then gave up the struggle and went back.

No Difficulty

About Passports.

They say there is no difficulty whatsoever about passports to enter and leave Canada. That it's just the same as in peacetime.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Two Sides To Problems NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—One trouble about unemployment is there are two sides to every question, and if it was like you could give them a job and they would take off their coats and go to work that would be one thing, but sometimes it works out the other way.

Like this guy, he comes around and says he is an elevator jockey, but they made him join the union because, otherwise, George Scallise's gorillas would picket the spot, so the boss says he can't stand the heat, because then the teamsters won't bring goods to and from the plant, so my friend, he joins the union. But he is independent dummy, and so one day when the union agent comes around to put the bite on him for some tickets to a benefit for the boys my chum starts to denounce him fearlessly, and the ape says all right, that will cost him a saw for willfully retarding the growth of the union by word, deed and example. Our boy doesn't want to pay, but it is warm in the elevator and cold outside, so he gathers up 10 bucks and pays the fine, but he is pretty sore, and he goes around with a brick in his hand trusting that some day he will draw a bead on Scallise or one of his baboons.

As it turns out after a few months Tom Dewey puts little George over a barrel and our friend comes blowing the whistle like Benny Goodman—only louder—and they send Scallise away to college, and our friend is full of cheer. By this time, however, he is a first-class private in the army of the unemployed, because he again retarded the growth of the union in this manner, and when you ask him what he holds he can only say, "no pair."

You Want To Help

Well, when a guy is a standup guy like that and fights those baboons without protection and shows his job you want to help, so there is a big shot in the real estate thing, and he says he certainly will do his best to get him a job, as that courageous kind of citizenship should be encouraged. Some of those babs are plenty mean, especially against a poor fellow with no influence, and after a while, sure enough, what do you know? The real estate mogul calls up and says send our chum around; he thinks he can put him to work.

By this time the monkey has checked out of his room, however, and it takes several hours chasing around town, but finally he is surrounded in a terrible old brownstone fleabag, where it smells in the hall like they don't bury their dead or don't even bother to put them in kipper.

Our boy certainly is in deep poverty from the look and smell of where he puts on the snore, but he is out of town just as present, so we chase him up by wire and tell him to scuffle on back and get in touch with Mr. So-and-So, and think no more about it until today.

Job Offer Suspected

Well, then, today, Mr. So-and-So sends a note, and it seems he passed the word to a friend in the real estate thing, and this friend sends for the monkey and wants to see a suit, and then give him a job riding up and down. But does our boy swoon with delight to get off the street and establish relations with a pay roll? If you think so you are just leaping crazy.

First, our boy demands to know who gives his company his name, and he is boiling mad because they have been messing in his private affairs, figuring that it is very humiliating to have to get blabbed around town, practically like it was on page one of all the papers, that he was out of work. Furthermore, he doesn't believe they have got this job for him, but thinks it is just a gag, and then he accuses the employment clerk of spying on him, because hardly anyone knows where he lives and, otherwise, how did they find out?

He is so indignant over this interference with his private life that by now the clerk turns him over to the superintendent, who explains again that they only want to give him a job in recognition of the way he practically took his life in his hands by saying he is a free man in a free country and nobody is going to go around spying on his private life—job or no job—so to hell with them and their elevator, and, anyway, he is practically deluged with offers, and it is just a question of which one to take.

So, you see, sometimes to get the straight of it about unemployment you have to get the other side of the story, because people aren't just cattle but all kinds of individuals with pride and temperament, and you have to handle them just exactly right.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Sunday, January 16, 1916:

"Six well-known Atlanta clubs with a membership aggregating 4,221 will be forced out of existence on the night of April 30 as a result of the provisions of the new state prohibition law."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Friday, January 16, 1891:

"Almost every one of Georgia's weeklies has a statement to the effect that la grippe has the town. The grip is no respecter of persons."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

TALMADGE AGAIN Now and then, in the course of almost any day, there are persons who clutch me by the lapel and inquire what it is that makes Mr. Eugene Talmadge tick.

They wish to know what sort of political "it" he possesses which enables him to keep a close hold, even in overwhelming defeat, on a bloc of votes which count from 80,000 to 100,000. In good times he can swing thousands more, but that bloc never deserts him. I cannot explain it. I have tried. Mr. Talmadge is not the only one who possesses it. There have been others in the state and national history who had even more of it than the Governor. But he has a fair share of it. I cannot explain it. But I can call forth a few witnesses.

The first one would be John C. McIntyre, 47, resident of Bartow county. Not since the time of John Ridd, the hero of Lorna Doone, has there appeared such a person as Mr. McIntyre.

John Ridd carried a sheep under each arm, walking from the snow-bound pasture to the barn.

Mr. McIntyre walked the 42 miles from Cartersville, Ga., carrying a possum, or an opossum, under each arm. This, I think, outdoes the late Mr. John Ridd, who walked a quarter of a mile with a sheep under each arm. Mr. Ridd made several journeys with several sheep. But, even so, I submit that Mr. McIntyre's hike of 42 miles with a couple of marsupials under his arms tops him. Mr. McIntyre steadfastly refused all proffers of rides on the cushions of automobiles and trudged the entire distance. Reason? He felt he ought to make some sort of sacrifice for Gene.

Mr. McIntyre was not seeking publicity. He was discovered by the merest accident. He did not tarry long. He just wanted to walk to Atlanta and carry two possums to "Old Gene" as though thereby he was doing something real for him, which would not have been the case had he accepted a ride.

As soon as his possums were delivered and he had shaken the hand of the Governor, Mr. McIntyre accepted a glass of sweet punch and then departed to make a bus home.

If you are seeking to discover what makes Mr. Talmadge tick you also must study Mr. McIntyre. He is one of the reasons.

THE HAGGARDS Also, you must study the Haggard family.

There are seven of them. They are well-to-do farmers and country businessmen, owning a large farm in Madison county.

The father, who is 74 years old, piles into the car with his six boys whenever Mr. Talmadge is to make a speech. They reach the appointed place and distribute themselves here and there. It may be up a tree. In fact, two of them were up a tree at the inauguration.

It was this one, S. G. Haggard Jr., who disturbed the speech for a moment on Tuesday. Mr. Talmadge mentioned, in discussing the game conditions, he had killed two deer over in South Carolina.

"You killed two with one shot in the election!" shouted Mr. S. G. Jr. They got a loud laugh and Mr. Talmadge ducked his head a bit so the crowd would not see him smile.

The voices of the Haggards are loud and raucous. They can be heard a good quarter of a mile over the din of the crowd. I suspect that on a good quiet day they might be heard as far away as Griffin if they all hollered at once. Their voices have something of the same quality as the trumpets which blew down the walls of Jericho.

This shouting and ad-libbing is a labor of love. They are not summoned. They just step on the starter and attend. They have never been paid. They do not want pay.

In explaining the Governor one also must explain the Haggards.

THE LOYAL LEGIONS Tom Watson had them. And before him, "Little Alec" Stephens and General Bob Toombs had them.

In our national history Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson had them, and Franklin D. Roosevelt has them today.

Jackson had the most of it. His following was the most intense and the most loyal of them all. The Talmadge reception, following the inauguration, was, on a small scale, somewhat akin to that of Jackson's.

People brought Jackson all sorts of outlandish presents.

History records that Representative and Mrs. George Gilmer, of Georgia, attended that reception. They remained long enough to see the crowd jam its way in. A few women fainted. Rawhide shoes and hunting moccasins were to be seen. Muddy boots left their marks on chairs as the owners of the boots climbed to points of vantage.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilmer, who had gone with Representative and Mrs. John Floyd, had to leave through a window. Mr. Gilmer, writing about it, said "I had to sustain with a weak leg from a fracture scarcely healed, the weight of Mrs. Floyd equalling 300 pounds."

It was a sad day for the Gilmers.

One shocked reporter wrote:

"One hundred and fifty dollar official chairs were profaned by the feet of clod hoppers anxious for a glimpse of their president."

Well, I don't know. It is a great thing to have the common people believe in you. The so-called "clod-hopper vote" is the one to have. And if one can add to that the confidence of the dwellers in apartments and city houses, one may live long and do well in politics.

Even the Owner of the Boat Has No Right To Sink It While Others Are Aboard

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

The most elemental of all rights is that of survival—the right to save one's own life; yet even this one is abrogated by circumstance and necessity.

No man has the right to save his life by sacrificing others. If he fights valiantly to save himself from murderous bandits, all decent people applaud; yet if he struggles with equal ferocity to brush aside women and children and escape from a burning theater or sinking ship, he is scorned by all mankind.

Can't Imagine Enjoying Salmon
At $2.50 Per Pound

Every now and then my favorite columnist, whose name appears at the top of this thoughtful essay on this and that, ventures afar into fields where he mairs up to his neck. His attention has frequently been called to it... by friends, acquaintances, volunteer critics and anonymous writers, who use a soft pencil on a postcard.

But, reverting to the first person singular, I never will learn better.

This time it's an article in a New York sheet about a delicatessen store on Madison avenue. I like delicatessen stores, though I often wish they'd adopt a name easier to type. It has been one of the great ambitions of my life to attain such affluence that I could stroll into one with a basket—a big basket—fill it to the brim with the weird imported mysteries from Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia... oh well, let's make that Italy or Bavaria... toss the man a forty-dollar note and tell him to keep the change. But that is still a dream.

This story about the delicatessen, I thought, would arouse my jaded appetite and give me a longing for the fleshpots of Babylon or points adjacent. But it didn't. Because it waxes lyrical about a special ham, already cooked, which retails at the bargain price of $1.25 a pound. And smoked breast of goose at $2 per pound. I assume that's avoirdupois, not troy weight. And also is mentioned Nova Scotia smoked salmon, mild and rich in flavor, at $2.50... which seems to be a special offering especially arranged for the underprivileged.

Perhaps I shall have to stick to Brooks county ham and country fried chicken. I don't think I could enjoy Nova Scotia smoked salmon at $2.50 the pound. My digestive apparatus isn't set for $2.50 the pound. I remember paying 40 cents at a New York hotel for as much orange juice for breakfast as would fill an eyedropper, and though I was on an unlimited expense account it rather soured me on orange juice. Will somebody please pass the gravy—and how about more hot biscuits? Is there no service around this house?

Job of Trucking

Motor truck and a 35-foot boat had a collision down near Brunswick.

Driver of the truck insisted he was in the clear because boats have no business on the highways. "I don't drive my truck into the bay, do I?" he protested. "At least, I haven't yet."

The boat was on a trailer, going somewhere or other. Which reminds me. Morning or so ago I saw something on a truck which made me glad I hadn't been the driver.

New store going up out Peachtree road. Roof to be supported by steel girders, arched and fabricated in the steel works.

One of those girders was balanced on a truck, ready to be hoisted into place. It looked about 60 feet long. I think it had been delivered during the night—perhaps around 3 a. m. when the traffic is light.

Since then the construction has progressed. Half-a-dozen of those girders are in place. And all hauled there on a truck.

I once brought home a Christ-

Midtown Dog

I've been bothered about a dog. Not my dog. Maybe he's nobody's dog.

He looks like part German shepherd and part almost anything. He is darker and smaller than most of the "police dogs" I know.

I saw him first a week ago, on Broad street near the viaduct. A woman who had just come out of a butcher's shop was unwrapping a package and extracting a piece of beef which she gave the dog. I wondered why she brought her dog up town to feed him and why she had the beef wrapped up first.

But apparently he isn't her dog. She was just sorry for him. Because I've seen him several times since, always on Broad or Forsyth street, dodging the traffic and just as much at home as the pigeons.

He doesn't look scrawny or half-starved. He looks well fed and happy. He is having a good time.

I wonder if he belongs to somebody with a store or shop or something who brings him to town and lets him use the streets as a playground. That's not so good. Sooner or later some truck is going to turn a corner—but let's hope not.

Anyway, he looks like a nice dog. But he wouldn't make friends with me. A midtown dog learns better than to fool around with strangers. Unless they have a package or something that smells like meat.

Editor L. P. Cross, of the Clayton Tribune, is moving—after renting the same house for 17 years. He writes of his regret at leaving good neighbors:

"During all those 17 years we never locked a door. Sometimes we would be gone two or three days at a time. Most of the time the doors would be shut but never locked."

Society gossip columnists interest me. For various reasons. One is the way they carefully avoid "coming right out and naming" anybody.

I'm thinking of the rumors of engagements. The writers "don't name no names," which is against the code. But they describe the girl down to the little mole behind her left ear and tell everything about the lucky man except his telephone number. But it wouldn't be nice to call names until the official announcement in the Sunday paper three weeks from now. In case something might happen. For instance, his losing his job.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

William F. McDermott, staff writer on the Chicago Daily News, has recently written, in that newspaper, one of the ablest and most constructive columns on "Religion in the Home" I have ever read. I quote from Mr. McDermott:

"Shoddy character—shoddy citizenship. Tailoring counts for little if the fabric is rotten. It isn't politics, lack of money, machinery or personnel that furnishes the church with its supreme challenge today. It's the moral and spiritual collapse which has engulfed the nation like a tidal wave. Here's something to think about:

"During the past year an estimated 1,500,000 penitentiary offenses will have been committed in the United States, including 12,000 murders, 10,000 assaults, 50,000 robberies and 40,000 burglaries. The crime bill is $15,000,000,000 a year or $10 per month for every man, woman and child in the United States. (Government figures.) The prison population increases 25,000 a year. The government at Washington has the fingerprints of 5,000,000 criminally inclined persons.

"A veteran juvenile officer said to the writer recently: 'The swarm of young thieves and gangsters today is the most ominous condition I have ever faced.' During the last year in a certain large American city, more than 1,200 were expelled for stealing. Chicago has 9,000 saloons, many of them more vicious than anything known in the open days before the first World War. Drunken women are a jest instead of a tragedy. Marriage is flouted, fidelity is ridiculed and the moral laws that centuries have accepted as the conditions of progress are scorned. The only crime is in getting caught. Mothers teach their 14-year-old daughters birth control, and vice is made glamorous."

"Meanwhile, the church contents itself, to a large degree, with bazars and social events, institutionalism and membership gains. It bandages the cancer and thinks all is well."

"Sturdy health is the one preventive of disease. Strong moral character is the one preventive of corruption and vice. Sturdy health is never maintained on one meal a week. No real moral character is built on one casual hour a week. Moral character is the product of religion. It is the fruit of faith, certainly not that of expediency, opportunism or egotism."

"When a man finds God he finds his own lost soul. And to bring the nation to that finding of God is the supreme task of all the branches of the church today. It must be done in the church and in the home. To the church are committed the teaching and the power. In the home it must be applied. Religion truly begins at home. The light shines farthest which burns brightest at home. If the home is spiritualized the church is vitalized."

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisons waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passage with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills. Used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

IT'S SO EASY!

Yes, Jane, it's true. I haven't told Jim about it because I am going to use the money for a new dress. It was SO easy... I gathered up all of our old furniture, called WALNUT 6565 and listed an ad in the Want Ad Pages of The Constitution. Before 9:00 o'clock the next morning I had sold the furniture for cash. Why don't you try it?

Athens Group Seeking Place In Defense Plan

$10,000,000 Army Air Base Project Hinted as Possibility.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 15.—A determined effort to obtain federal defense enterprises for Athens, launched by a group of local businessmen, was discussed at a dinner sponsored by R. V. Watterson, local banker.

Deploring the fact Athens thus far has received none of the projects, Watterson urged that aggressive measures be taken to place one or more of the various defense plants in or near Athens.

Watterson declared he had been definitely informed that a $10,000,000 Army air base "is floating around in the vicinity," and ultimately will be located at some site within a 100-mile radius of Athens. He said he felt Athens stands a good chance of obtaining the enterprise, which would have a personnel of about 15,000 men.

Postmaster J. R. Myers read a letter from Congressman Paul Brown, promising all possible aid in obtaining a project for Athens.

Music, Drama, Comedy Fill Theater Bills

Picture Houses Offer Wide Range of Attractions.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.

It's another week for variety at the local picture theaters. Musical comedy, a working girl's drama, light fun stuff, and adventure in the clouds—all find a place on current billings.

"No, No, Nanette," with Anna Neagle in light musical comedy, opened yesterday at the Paramount, "Kitty Foyle," a drama of the American white collar girl, opens today at the Fox with Ginger Rogers in her greatest role.

Melvyn Douglas and Rosalind Russell battle comedy lines around in "This Thing Called Love," which first unrolls today at the Rialto.

"Flight Command," with Robert Taylor, Ruth Hussey and Walter Pidgeon, begins at Loew's tomorrow. "Unexpected Father" plays at the Joy's Atlanta today.

"No, No, Nanette" Anna Neagle, in another light musical, sings the ageless song hit, "Tea for Two" and "I Want to Be Happy" and "No, No, Nanette" in the Paramount theater's current feature also called "No, No, Nanette."

In the supporting cast are such romantic names as Richard Carlson and Victor Mature and the comedy favorites Roland Young, Helen Broderick and Zasu Pitts.

The story is concerned with an elderly man who can't keep his eyes off young and beautiful girls who happen not to be dumb enough to let him get away with such gazing without charging him for it. His niece, Nanette, attempts to help him solve his problems without his wife finding out. As a result she becomes involved herself and all matrimonial alliances begin tumbling.

"Kitty Foyle" Ginger Rogers steps out in her greatest dramatic role in "Kitty Foyle," a story of the American white collar girl, which opens today at the Fox theater. Sam Wood directed. R. K. O. produced.

In the cast are Dennis Morgan and James Craig, the former as the Philadelphia society boy who falls in love with the little working girl from across the railroad tracks. Craig plays the homely doctor, who comes and sits on Ginger's doorsteps to see if he can have fun with her without going places—"I can't afford to fall in love with a girl I'll not be happy with."

Between the two, Ginger must make a choice, but so well is the picture directed and so well has the script been written, that the final choice is never known until the final line of the show. The suspense is terrific. The story is one girl's history. It might be another's.

Head-On Crash Fatal to Three New Yorkers

Two Others Injured in Accident South of Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Jan. 15.—(AP)—An early morning fog was blamed by state patrolmen today for an auto-truck crash 15 miles south of Brunswick, which left three New Yorkers dead and two others in serious condition in a local hospital.

The victims were identified as W. Wiggs, 56, and Max Wiggs, 39, father and son, of Haverstraw, N. Y., and Mrs. Sylvia Schaub, 56, of New York City.

Mrs. Max Wiggs, 34-year-old wife of one of the victims, was in a critical condition with a broken leg, broken arm and other injuries. Mrs. Joseph Cohen, 39, another passenger in the death car, suffered a broken leg.

State patrolmen said the accident occurred during a heavy early morning fog when the New York car collided with a truck being driven by an 18-year-old negro. Patrolmen quoted him as saying the head-on crash occurred as he attempted to pass another car going in the same direction.

Macon, Albany Are Approved To Train Pilots

War Department Plans for Basic and Advanced Instruction.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Aides of Representative Cox, Democrat, Georgia, said today the War Department had approved the establishment of pilot training fields at Macon and Albany, Georgia.

It was said basic training for Army pilots would be given at Macon and advanced training at Albany. Other details about the developments were not available immediately.

Cox's aides said the Macon facility would cost about $1,500,000 and the one at Albany about $2,000,000.

They said the Army Air Corps advised them the Macon field would accommodate 1,400 enlisted men, 173 officers and 375 cadets. At Albany, they said, accommodations were planned for 1,437 enlisted men, 154 officers and 167 cadets.

It was said leases had been forwarded to both cities for approval.

method of preparing the "regular operations" budget sheet, the Governor said:

"By regular operations is meant that this shall cover the actual rock bottom operating cost of your agency, eliminating the frills and the experimental matters that you, as an administrator, know do not contribute their worth to the efficient operations of your agency."

In a letter to W. E. Wilburn, member of the State Highway Board, State Auditor Thrasher said highway expenditures will be limited to the following:

The general cost of the Highway Department including general expense, research and analysis, revenue collection, quarry, surveys, shop, highway planning and engineering, shall not exceed the sum of $120,000 a month, including payments and commitments.

Maintenance of roads will be held down to $125,000 a month including payments and commitments. Contracts entered into with counties for the operation of convict forces shall not exceed $75,000 a month for each of the months of January and February and $185,000 a month for each month thereafter.

WPA Fund Limited.

WPA work shall not be entered into in excess of $25,000 a month for January and February and $95,000 for each month thereafter. The state's part of this work is approximately 25 per cent.

All 100 per cent federal-aid contracts shall be let as soon as possible, and the federal allotment for the year ending June 30, 1940, together with approximately $3,000,000 state funds required to match the federal allotments, shall be put in shape to let contracts on in June, 1941.

The department shall provide for the county highway certificate payment on March 25.

Past due obligations, commitments to mature in future, and outstanding purchase orders shall be liquidated in amount of $6,000,000 in the next 12 months, divided as follows: $1,700,000 in April, $390,000 in May, $115,000 in June, $40,000 in July, $415,000 in August, $1,515,000 in October, $200,000 in November and $1,545,000 in December.

Newsmen walked into the Governor's office yesterday and found him in a jovial but firm mood.

"I understand the highway Department let some contracts just before the inauguration yesterday," he said. "I have issued instructions that there shall be no work orders sent out on them."

W. L. Miller, chairman of the board, said he knew of no such contracts having been let—that the last contracts to be awarded were nearly two weeks ago.

Hull, Tinkham Win Laughs in Sharp Debate

Secretary Says He Wanted To Disturb Congressman.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The fur flew and the audience roared today when Secretary Hull, rangy mountain man from Tennessee, traded verbal punches with Representative Tinkham, bearded Bostonian and big game hunter, on the question of aid to Britain.

Tinkham, whose twin delights are hunting lions in darkest Africa and twisting the British lion's tail, inquired at a house hearing whether the pending lend-lease bill would permit the United States to give away any of its navy.

"That's so violent an assumption that I'm surprised that even you would mention it," Hull replied.

Tinkham Grunts. "We are in the days when the most violent assumptions are likely to be correct assumptions," Tinkham remarked.

At one point in the exchange, Tinkham referred to State Department "secrecy."

"My door has been open for the last eight years and you have never darkened it in quest of information," Hull commented quietly, while the audience laughed and Tinkham said "Humpff."

The congressman, after taking his glasses off and putting them back on, conceded that he had obtained some information from the department at various times which had caused him to be "disturbed."

"Frankly, I thought you wanted to be disturbed when I sent you the information," said Hull, poker-faced.

A little later Tinkham explosively accused Hull of "evading questions." Chairman Bloom, Democrat, New York, insisted that Tinkham had no right to make comments, only to ask questions. Tinkham replied that he had every right to comment on a question which was not answered.

Tinkham Wins Laugh. When the Massachusetts Republican remarked that the United States had not been attacked, Hull shot back: "That's what they said in Holland."

Tinkham won laughs with his quips, too. Once Representative Luther A. Johnson, Democrat, Texas, pleaded with Tinkham to limit the scope of his questioning. "The gentleman (Tinkham) is a very intelligent man," Johnson concluded his remark.

"I repel the suggestion," Tinkham said, then broke into the broadest of grins.

British Navy Promotes

LONDON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Vice Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, commander-in-chief of the British Mediterranean fleet, and Vice Admiral Sir Max Horton, head of the British submarine service, have been promoted to the rank of admiral, an admiralty announced tonight.

craft in American ports would not be the Hague in replying to a barrage of questions from Republican committee members leading the fight to restrict the scope of the bill and the President's powers under it.

Bald, bewildered Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, was in the middle of the Republican battle throughout the day and felt the rough edge of the Hull and Morgenthau tongues on several occasions. Once when he said he did not have Morgenthau's confidence in the President's ability to make the best possible bargain for repayment of materials sent abroad, the treasury secretary snapped:

"You are probably in the minority." Tinkham was coached during the questioning of Hull by Representative Hamilton Fish, ranking Republican member of the committee. He brought titters from those seated near by when he turned to the New York congressman and asked in an aside:

"What's the next question?" Morgenthau submitted a balance sheet of British finances which was gloomy in respect to Britain's ability to pay for continuous purchases of munitions in this country. "The British government was said to feel that the other balances in the United States are at a minimum level for the continued conduct of business and thus are unavailable for war orders."

SENATOR LEE PLEADS FOR QUICK PASSAGE. WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Senator Lee, Democrat, Oklahoma, appealing tonight for speedy passage of the lend-lease bill, said that "the present emergency is as serious as war itself," and that "time will not allow us to talk the slow democratic processes which we follow under normal conditions."

"If American aid to England is to count, we must give the President power to act without delay," Lee said in an NBC radio address. "Hitler's blitzkrieg conquered Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and France in less time than it took the United States congress to pass a military training law."

"We must trust Roosevelt just as England is trusting Churchill."

Eaton Strike Is Settled by U. S. Mediator

Other Walkouts Threatened in Essential Defense Industries.

By The United Press. Settlement of a strike which had tied up production of vital airplane parts was announced by a federal conciliator last night as other walkouts were threatened in the ammunition, aircraft and electric power industries.

James F. Dewey announced in Detroit that an agreement had been reached in the strike by the United Automobile Workers' Union (CIO) against five plants of the Eaton Manufacturing Company. Terms of the agreement were not revealed, but it was announced that the strikers would return to work today in Saginaw, Battle Creek, Marshall and Detroit, Mich., and at Cleveland, Ohio.

Strike Authorized. At San Diego, Cal., workers at the Ryan Aeronautical Co., plant authorized a United Automobile Workers' negotiating committee to call a strike if their demands for wage increases are not met. No time limit was set and union leaders said they were willing to continue negotiations.

Officials of the UAW in Cleveland announced that a strike would be taken Thursday among 1,000 employees of the Weatherhead Manufacturing Company over demands for a general 10-cent wage increase. The company holds contracts for $1,000,000 worth of ammunition parts.

A strike of 1,000 employees of the Narragansett Electric Co., at Providence, R. I., was called for 7 a. m. today, but Mayor Dennis J. Roberts sought to arrange arbitration before the deadline. The threatened strike would affect factories working on $15,000,000 in defense orders.

Striking employees of the Babcock & Wilcox Company in Bayonne, N. J., producers of boilers for the Navy, rejected an offer of a 3-cent an hour wage increase and a 60-cent minimum.

NEW EMPLOYEES STRIKE FOR EATON STRIKERS

CLEVELAND, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Eaton Manufacturing Company will hire strikers at its Saginaw (Mich.) plant, but will give them the status of new employees, sources close to the company management said tonight, following settlement of a controversy affecting five factories. Reinstated workers will be paid the same rates they received before a strike at Saginaw last November, however, these sources added.

Otis Horne Is Found

Dead in Automobile. Otis Horne, Atlanta refrigerator dealer, was found dead in his automobile early yesterday morning near Jasper, Fla.

Florida officials investigated the death and expressed the opinion that carbon monoxide gas escaping from the exhaust was the cause of death.

Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon in Jasper. The only land in which the Treasury secretary said she can obtain them.

He reported that war purchases and other orders in this country to be met by Britain in 1941 total $3,019,000,000. Britain's total dollar assets were given at $1,775,000,000 as of January 1, 1941, and an additional $1,555,000,000 will be available in dollar receipts to pay liquidation of this obligation.

"This financial picture which I've given you, I'm satisfied will pay this year for what already has been bought," Morgenthau said. "When it comes to finding the dollars to pay for anything like what they may need, they just haven't got it."

In addition to the $1,775,000,000 in total dollar exchange assets in the United States, the United Kingdom has long-term foreign investments outside of this country valued at $3,868,000,000 pounds and $33,000,000 in gold scattered throughout the world. British banks, private persons and corporations have balances in the United States of another $305,000,000 which are subject to British control in wartime.

The British government was said to feel that the other balances in the United States are at a minimum level for the continued conduct of business and thus are unavailable for war orders.

SENATOR LEE PLEADS FOR QUICK PASSAGE. WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Senator Lee, Democrat, Oklahoma, appealing tonight for speedy passage of the lend-lease bill, said that "the present emergency is as serious as war itself," and that "time will not allow us to talk the slow democratic processes which we follow under normal conditions."

"If American aid to England is to count, we must give the President power to act without delay," Lee said in an NBC radio address. "Hitler's blitzkrieg conquered Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and France in less time than it took the United States congress to pass a military training law."

"We must trust Roosevelt just as England is trusting Churchill."

Bills To Slash Officials' Pay Are Introduced

members would be paid $10 each day they worked. All would receive traveling expenses.

Another house proposal would repeal the law setting aside $100 a month out of motor carriers fees for each member of the Public Service Commission. The $25 a month the chairman of the commission receives from the same source would also be cut off.

Shortly after the lower house convened, Speaker Randall Evans Jr. announced the appointment of veteran J. W. Culpepper, of Fayette county, as floor leader and vice chairman of the rules committee. Herschel Lovett, of Laurens county, was named chairman of the ways and means committee, and J. Robert Elliott, of Muscogee county, chairman of the appropriations committee.

Other committee vacancies would be filled after members of the assembly return from Washington, where they will attend the inauguration of President Roosevelt, Evans said.

By a vote of 97 to 57, the house noisily voted down a resolution offered by W. R. Bleas, of Brooks county, that no women or girls over 12 years of age be employed as assistant doorkeepers, assistant messengers or pages.

Companion pipeline measures introduced by Representative R. E. Chastain, of Thomas county, and J. M. Curry, of Randolph, set out they were based on the theory the assembly wants to develop channels of commerce and facilitate national defense.

The supreme court has ruled that pipeline bills passed by the 1939 legislature are void. The Southeastern Pipeline Company, which planned a line from Port St. Joe, Fla., through Georgia to the Tennessee line near Chattanooga, immediately stopped construction on its line, which had reached as far as Bainbridge.

The pardoning powers of the Governor were limited in a bill introduced in the house by Representatives Lewis and Walls, of Burke county, and Dallis, of Troup. Representative Sam Welch, of Cobb, announced he would introduce an earlier bill along the same line today.

Yesterday's measure would forbid the Governor's granting clemency without the written consent of the prosecutor and trial judge.

Measures sponsored by the Fulton delegation included two affecting state election laws; one forbidding the sale of fireworks in counties of more than 200,000 population, and another relieving drivers of fire trucks en route to fires of financial responsibility in case of an accident. Introduced by Helen Douglas Mankin, of the last bill shifts responsibility of the defense and damages to the municipality.

Election Regulations. Other Mankin-sponsored bills prohibit the soliciting of votes or handing out of cards within 200 feet of a polling precinct and the abolition of the numbered ballot. The latter bill, to insure a secret ballot, would affect both primary and general elections.

Fulton-born measures would also prohibit ordinances from giving legal advice and preparing legal papers; do away with a law providing that clerks of superior courts maintain a grantee index of instruments relating to personal property; would abolish special demurrers, providing for the filing of exceptions with the proviso that cases in question must proceed to trial.

Other Fulton-sponsored bills would eliminate special demurrers to bring state practice nearer in line with federal procedure; raise the age at which children may be employed in industry from 14 to 16 years, prevent the counties from paying any part of the expense of surveying, maintaining or construction of state roads; and give the state power to deed back lands which had been obtained by them for right of ways and still lie unused after seven years. Mrs. Mankin said farm and domestic workers were exempted in the amendment to the child labor law.

An urgent Talmadge measure brought into the house was an amendment to the appropriations

Kentucky Lad Admits Slaying Georgia Driver

Fort Knox Soldier Also Is Held in Killing.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Two teen-age youths, one a Fort Knox soldier, were in custody tonight charged with the slaying January 9 of James Arthur Henslee, of Lithia Springs, Ga., a cattle broker and truck operator.

Major Leland Barnes, of the Kentucky highway patrol, identified the men as Leslie Harvey Vaughn, 18, now in jail at Whiteley City, Ky., and Dan Green Davis, 17, held under guard at Fort Knox.

Vaughn, Barnes said, had made a "full confession" and had admitted that theft of Henslee's automobile was the motive.

Henslee's bullet-riddled body was found by school children on a highway near Greenwood. He was returning to Georgia after supervising the delivery of a load of fruit to Ohio. His car, bought in Ohio, was found later in Corbin, Kentucky.

bill, giving the governor virtual dictatorship over state finances. The proposal empowers him to shift surplus funds from one department to another, month to month.

The Fulton delegation also introduced a measure eliminating a municipality's authority to employ special agents to hunt out unreturned taxes on a commission.

John Ferguson, of Sumter county, foe of the time line that splits Georgia down the middle, introduced a measure making eastern standard time the official time of the whole state. Central time would be pushed over the western boundary into Alabama.

An amendment to the motor fuel tax act, striking out the provision allowing a one per cent rebate to distributors to cover the losses and expenses incurred in the collection of taxes, was introduced.

The Bibb county delegation submitted proposals providing for a constitutional amendment permitting the state to advertise and promote its natural resources to help its history. Two bills amending the city charter of Macon were also put before the house.

Congregation Builds Church On Sheer Faith

Rev. Whittington Preaches Stern Doctrine to Packed House.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

The Lord, says the Rev. Harry L. Whittington, does not cherish a mule-faced Christian.

The Lord wants his children to serve Him with gladness. He wants to hear them singing joyously, to the music of instruments whose melodies set the blood to tingling. He likes to hear them clap their hands and stamp their feet and shout "Hallelujah" when the spirit moves them. He likes for them to feel the ecstasy that makes their bodies sway in time to the music and He likes to hear them cry out in the unknown tongue.

The Lord, says the Rev. H. L. Whittington, wants His people to find in His house joy so profound they will renounce all the cheap and shallow pleasures of this world and find in their faith alone thrill enough to satisfy them.

For Two Decades.

In this belief the Rev. Whittington for 20 years has managed to draw people to him in a faith that denies his flock what other, more formal faiths condone—the small worldly pleasures that his church—the Church of God—look upon as sin.

The members of the Church of God go to no ball games, see no movies. They do not drink, cuss, chew, smoke or dip snuff. They do not wear rings. To do these things is sinful, and to do them defiantly means severance from the fellowship of the church.

They can sin in these ways and be forgiven, for the Church of God follows Biblical precepts in these matters—seven times seven times a sinner may be forgiven. But if he does not seek forgiveness, if he does not come to the altar and confess his sins and beg forgiveness, out he goes.

Patterned After Wesley. His faith, says the Rev. Mr. Whittington, is more closely akin to the old Methodist church of John and Charles Wesley than to any other faith. It believes, he says, in "Salvation, sanctification, baptism of the Holy Ghost, and fire, evidenced by the speaking in the unknown tongue."

It is a stern faith and brooks no trifling. The preacher knows his flock. He can soon tell when a brother is sinning by the use of blasphemous language, even though he may never hear him utter a profane word. He can read it in the face of a sister when she takes a forbidden dip of snuff, or attends a forbidden movie.

"I can always tell," he laughs.

It is hard to believe that a faith so stern can attract so many to its teaching in these easy-going days. But here is the evidence of the appeal it has and the strength it exercises. In October a year ago the Rev. Harry L. Whittington came to the pastorate of the Church of God here. Then it was a little structure on Sixth street, with a membership that was exceedingly small.

Church Overflowed. He began to preach his fiery doctrine and the membership began to pick up. The crowds began to overflow the little church. The Rev. Mr. Whittington saw that his church was going to grow so big it had to have another house of worship.

His flock was not rich, though. Out of all its membership, perhaps only 80 were wage earners, and they averaged little more than $12.50 a week. But he was not discouraged. He set himself to raise $1,000 a month, $1,000 at one Sunday service. The first Sunday in December a year ago he made his first appeal. From his little flock, and from the visitors who were there, he got his $1,000. His people went out in the streets and sold pencils, candy, matches, hand-made towels and table covers which made themselves to raise the money.

Sister H. M. Smith went out on the streets with candy. Each box was supposed to be sold at a profit of 59 cents.

"But," she said, "the Lord blessed me and I made a profit of over a dollar on every box." Sister Smith was just one of many. All over town other members were selling things to raise money for the new church.

In five months he had $5,000 and he asked his flock if they had faith enough to start building a $25,000 church on that amount. They told him to go ahead.

He asked the Lord about it in prayer and the Lord told him to go ahead.

He handled all the contracting himself and got things started, the new brick church going up on Hemphill avenue at Clayton street. By the time the $5,000 was spent he had raised $2,000 more. By the time the $2,000 was spent he had another $1,000. Brick by brick the church was going up.

By that time they had something they could trade on, and they borrowed another $8,000 from an insurance company. While that was being spent the congregation had raised another $1,000. The county did about $1,200 worth of work for them on grading and one thing and another, and the electric company which put in the lighting fixtures sent back the money that had been paid it. They gave the fixtures to the church.

Seems Small. And that's the way they built a beautiful brick church that seats 1,200 people in an auditorium that for all its size gives the feeling of being a small place because the joyous singing of the congregation is amplified and reamplified by the low ceiling.

And even now they can't handle the crowds. There are more than 500 at the morning service.

CHOIR—When the music gets in their blood the members of the choir of the Church of God let the whole world know they are happy. Here two sisters keep time with hands and feet and swaying bodies as they sing "There's Power in the Blood."

CONGREGATION—Church of God folks come early in the morning, stay all day, hear three sermons. Many who live across town bring their lunch, eat it in the pews. Members forsake all the world's pleasures, find their happiness in song and worship.

There are about 1,000 at the afternoon service, which in a radio broadcast is estimated to reach an air audience of 200,000. At night every seat is filled and many stand.

Not all are church members, of course. The rules of the Church of God are too strict for a big membership to adhere to them. Most of the crowd are non-members, people of other faiths, who find in the Church of God something that their own church does not give. They join in as eagerly as the members though in the shouting and the clapping and the stamping. And when the collection plate is passed they give as freely as the members give.

Has Magnetism. The secret of it all seems to lie in the personality of the preacher. He is a little man, five feet six inches tall. He weighs, at most, 130 pounds. But there is a magnetism about him you feel as soon as he steps out on the platform, raises his hands to the sky, laughs aloud for what seems to be the sheer joy of contemplating what he is about to say and calls:

"Everybody who feels the love of Jesus in his heart, say Amen." "Amen," the crowd thunders. "Say it louder. Let the Lord know how you feel."

"AMEN," the congregation roars. That gets them in the mood and there is a sense of expectancy as the music begins. There is no sonorous organ playing. There is instead, a piano, an accordion, three guitars, a trumpet. And when the big choir, sometimes as many as 125 voices, begins on some old song like "Power in the Blood," there is rhythm and syncopation—it might even be called swing—in it, that is rarely heard in a church.

Emotions Stirred. Feet beat time and hands clap. Basses and baritones bellow, tenors and sopranos rise with the trumpet high above the melody and the crowd begins to weave and sway. As the music begins to grip him the preacher moves about the platform, his whole body bending and swaying in time to the music. "Hallelujah," he shouts. "Yes, Jesus, we are Yours."

"Hallelujah," the crowd responds. As the music dies he begins to preach. He speaks in simple terms but every word and gesture holds his audience in the emotional grip the music engendered. He preaches with all his voice and all his body. He moves from one end of the platform to the other, hands beseeching his hearers, arms uplifted imploring divine mercy. He has something of the look and manner and grace on the platform of Fred Astaire, the dancer.

He preaches generally for an hour, a sermon that is full of emotional climaxes that draw from choir and congregation shouts of approbation, and leave him, at the end of the hour, exhausted.

His energy is unbelievable. Right now his wife is ill and is with her parents in North Carolina. He looks after the six of their nine children who are at home, gets their breakfast, gets them off to school. His days are filled with visiting the sick, with conferences with deacons over fallen members, plans to raise money for something the church needs. Right now in addition to his work here he is conducting a revival meeting near Griffin.

His job is church building. In the 23 years of his ministry he has built at least six. He goes into a town where the church is faltering, lifts it up, builds a new church, gets it on its feet "and back to God" and goes on to another town to perform the same service.

"The secret of the power of my church," he says, "is the fact that it goes back to the old-time religion. Its people are sanctified

Scholastic Gifts Feature Reports At Tallulah Tea

Highlighting the tea for the scholarship committee of the Young Matrons' Circle for the Tallulah Falls School which was held yesterday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving Club, was the announcement by Mrs. C. C. Sloan and Mrs. R. H. Dobbs Jr., chairmen of the committee, of a perpetual memorial scholarship in the nature of a bequest from the late Mrs. Nellie T. Moore in memory of her husband, Augustus Monroe Moore. Mrs. Moore's interest in Tallulah Falls School came from her niece, Mrs. Helen D. Bland, a valued member of the Young Matrons' Circle, and herself an ardent supporter of the school.

Two interesting $150 annual scholarships were also announced by Mrs. Sloan and Mrs. Dobbs; one given by Mrs. Vassar Woolley in memory of her sister, Mrs. Catherine Rutherford Cady, and the other from a leading Atlanta department store. Other gifts of equal importance and interest were also reported, including $100 from G. W. Rowbotham for the Lottie Chapman Rowbotham Memorial, and $75 from Mrs. W. E. Pearson, of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Sloan and Mrs. Dobbs stated that payments had been made on perpetual scholarships heretofore announced amounting to $2,600.

Further plans for the cotton carnival, to be sponsored by the circle for the benefit of the Passie Fenton Otley endowment fund Monday evening, January 27, at the Ansley room, were discussed. Special plans for the event were announced by Mrs. Robert F. Adamson and Mrs. Bernard Neal, chairmen of the carnival.

Mrs. Fort Adams, merchandise certificate chairman for the carnival, reported on the bird painting done by Mrs. Herbert Oliver and presented to the Tallulah Falls School through the Young Matrons' Circle, this to serve as a choice prize during the carnival.

Mrs. Charles T. Pottinger, past president of the circle and a member of the Passie Fenton Otley Endowment Fund, gave a report and introduced the other two members of the committee, Mesdames Lawrence Willet and W. Eugene Harrington. Mrs. Pottinger stressed the needs of the children at the school.

Beautify the Upper Arms And Shoulders With Specific Set of Exercises

By Ida Jean Kain.

Having looked the field over, it seems obvious that what most women need is either special arm exercise or sleeves. Arms just aren't as pretty as they should be. Instead of being firm, the backs of the upper arms are soft and flabby.

I've just been given figures to prove that two-thirds of the day's work is done before noon. Well, no wonder so many folks insist on starting the day right, with Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Sausage Links. There's a breakfast you respond to with all your being! Your ears drink in the sweet promise of that heartening sizzle. Your nose revels in the savory fragrance. Your eyes feast on the delectable golden brownness. And every bit of you enjoys the rich, succulent Wilson's flavor.

RULES FOR SAUSAGES: Put them in a cold frying pan, prick with fork, fry gently.

FLAVOR'S IMPORTANT! Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Sausages are made of sweet, juicy pork, seasoned just right.

"Pigs in the Corn"

Make corn meal mush and pour it into a greased pie tin. When cool, cut up like a pie.

Remove sausage links, dip pieces of mush in flour and fry in the sausage fat. Arrange the fried mush in a pie shape on a serving dish.

Put cooked sausages between the fried mush sections, and breathe the "pie" with the rest of the sausages. Decorate the center of each piece of mush with cranberry jelly. Serve with hot apple sauce.

Arrange tangerine sections and thin slices of avocados in cocktail glasses. Make a dressing of the following: 1/4 cup Wilson's Salad Oil, 3 tablespoons Wilson's Savory Mayonnaise, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 tablespoons tomato ketchup. ## Man Writes of Success With Injection Treatment

By Dr. William Brody.

I have been a reader of your column for a long time (writes D. G.). I have been especially interested in your articles on the ambulant treatment of hernia, because my son, aged 25 years, had a bad hernia for some years and would not have it operated on. Three months ago, while lifting a heavy object, I had sudden sharp pains in my right side. I reported it to my employer who had me examined by the insurance company's doctor. He told me that I had a rupture and that it ought to be operated on. I told him I wanted it injected. After some argument I referred him to another man, aged 65 years, who works in the same place with me; this man had received the injection treatment for hernia and had been well since. The insurance company's doctor wanted to know who had given the injection treatment, and I told him it was a Dr. —. The company doctor then sent for the man who had been cured by the injection treatment. They examined him, three different doctors, and stated they could find no sign of rupture.

My son then went to Dr. — who had successfully treated this man, received the treatment and is now cured.

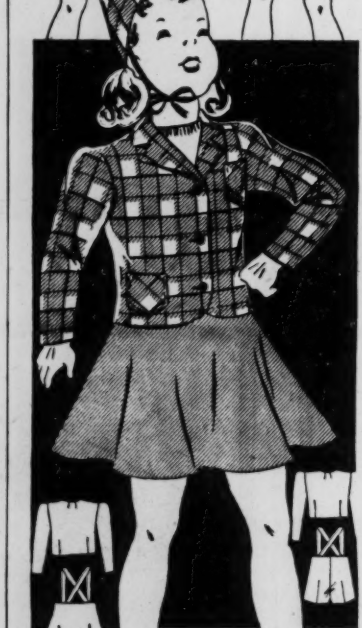

Finally the insurance company authorized me to take the injection treatment from Dr. — and the results were excellent in my case, too. My father, aged 68, is now receiving the injection treatment for his rupture.

I thought you might be interested in our experience, for we have you to thank for calling our attention to this excellent treatment. (D. G. and J. G.).

Not every case of hernia can be treated by injection. Operation is still the only chance of cure for many hernia sufferers — I say chance of cure, for of course neither operation nor injection treatment is certain to cure in every case. But the percentage of failures is as large or perhaps larger in cases operated on than in cases given the treatment.

Madeleine Wins Back Her Title

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15.—Ruth Hussey is in the money. Her salary has just been raised to $1,000 a week—from $750. And it's because of her "Philadelphia Story" performance. . . . Madeleine Carroll's French fiancé, Lieutenant Roziere, is planning to settle permanently in Hollywood and soon will accept a producer berth. The couple may be married before you read this. . . . Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck couldn't be happier, according to Brian Donlevy. But the disquieting rumors of marital non-bliss are still popping up. . . . Eleanor Powell does a tap dance with a dog in "Lady Be Good," with the canine supplying his share of the taps. I'll have to see it to believe it.

Stirling Hayden's blond curls and provocative lower lip are going to do devastating things to ladies of all ages when they see him in "Virginia." The sigh of rapture that greeted his every appearance on the screen at the preview showing is a good index of what will happen when the rest of you get a gander at him. He really is terrific. So is 5-year-old Carolyn Lee, who, in my humble opinion, is better than Shirley Temple ever was. And we mustn't forget Madeleine Carroll, who has lost excess poundage and won back her title "The Most Beautiful Fair-Haired Girl in Hollywood."

Mrs. Ronald Colman is sporting two diamond and ruby clips that cost Mr. Colman $80,000 the pair. Benita's collection of jewelry outdistances that of Paulette Goddard's, which means that between them they own quite a bit more than half a million dollars' worth of gems. Phew! . . . Bette Davis' husband, Arthur Farnsworth, is looking for a job here. He has had business management experience

MY DAY: Making Arrangements For the Inauguration

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Yesterday afternoon we had a charming musical at the White House. Mr. Eugene List, the young pianist, made me feel that I would selfishly like to drop in some time when he was playing for his own pleasure, and ask him to run over many of the things which I like best and which I remember having had played to me when I was a child. Both of our artists yesterday were young. Mr. William Horne has a lovely voice and his program was delightfully chosen. Everyone to whom I spoke afterwards told me that they enjoyed the afternoon.

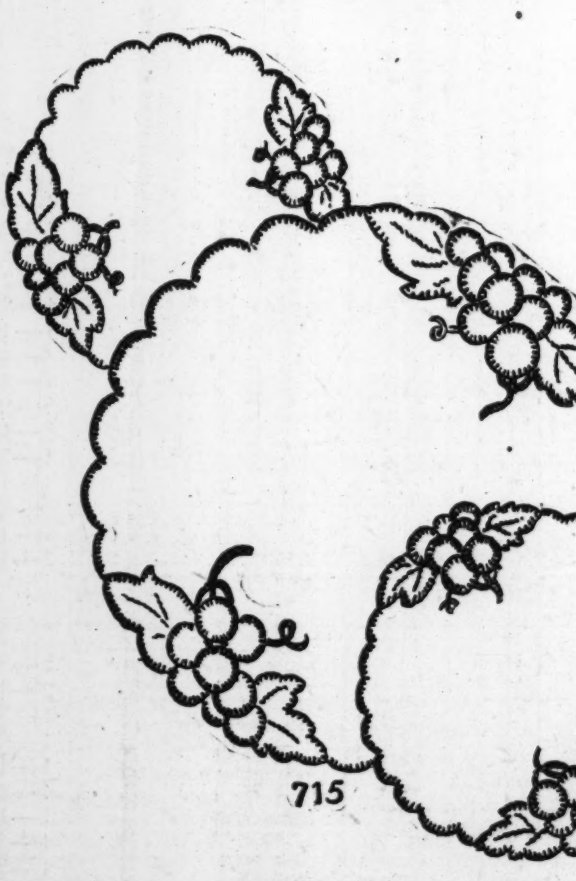

Mr. Maurice Davidson came in late for tea to tell me something more of the trip to Mexico with Vice President-elect and Mrs. Wallace. I gather they all had a most successful time. Mr. Davidson is the president of the Society of American Friends of Mexico and has a special interest in the development of friendly relations between us and the Mexican government and people.

These days before the inauguration are particularly trying for Mrs. Helm and Miss Thompson, who keep getting requests for seats, or for invitations to lunch or tea. We know quite well that seats cannot be expanded indefinitely and that, wonderful as the staff of the White House is, there comes a point where even the simplest lunch or tea cannot be served to any more people.

Rather sadly, Mrs. Helm said to me this morning: "Don't you think we can say to anyone who hasn't answered yet that the lists are closed?" I think she was rather discouraged when I explained that there would continue to be requests up to the last minute, some of which we would undoubtedly have to consider.

Yesterday former Governor O. Max Gardner, who is chairman of the Governors' reception committee, came to see me to invite the entire family to the reception which is being given for the Governors by the inaugural committee at the residence of Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies.

Grape Design for a Buffet Set

Unusually decorative yet simple to do is this three-piece buffet set. Hot iron transfer pattern No. 715 contains two 7-inch and one 10-inch motif and complete instructions. To order this pattern, send 10 cents in coin or stamps to Needlework Bureau, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Are Your Manners Smooth?

Asking for a date! But so crudely she's amused rather than flattered by his efforts to know her and her circle.

The well-mannered young men she goes about with would never ask for a date with "What are you doing Thursday?" for that would embarrass her if she didn't have an engagement. Then, once saying she was free, she couldn't very well refuse any entertainment offered.

Instead they'd ask "Could you go with me to 'Desert Sands' Thursday?" And of course they'd never keep their hats on when meeting a girl on the street.

Etiquette isn't just so much fuss and bother; it's the oil in the machinery of every date, party or casual meeting!

Even such a simple affair as a movie date runs so much more smoothly when you know your role. At the ticket window, the girl doesn't hover at her escort's elbow but waits near-by. Going down the aisle, he shows he knows his p's and q's by asking her considerately "Where would you like to sit?"

Have the manners that win an entree to the smart crowd. Our 40-page booklet, Etiquette for the Teens, gives sophisticated manners for movies, dances, dates; when dining, visiting, entertaining, motoring.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR THE TEENS, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Sally Forth SAYS

Lord Beaverbrook's Cable Received by Atlanta Matron

• • • ANNUAL VISITORS to Miami during the winter are well acquainted with the fact that rubbing elbows with the wearers of spurious titles, which can be had for a dime a dozen at the height of the season, is not at all unusual. For this reason it isn't surprising to know that when Mrs. Jack Lanum, the former Sally Lee, of Savannah, was introduced to William Maxwell Aiken, Lord Beaverbrook, at the resort several years ago, she was not impressed by his title, though she found him most charming as a person.

During the season her acquaintance with the Englishman developed into a companionable friendship. In fact, Lord Beaverbrook admired Sally so much that the evening she announced her engagement to Jack Lanum to a small group of friends, the English peer, who is a "tee-totaler," drank his first glass of champagne as a toast to the bride-elect.

It has been since Sally and Jack moved to Atlanta for residence within the past two years that the former discovered Lord Beaverbrook's title is an authentic one. The discovery was made, of course, when press announcements stated his appointment as England's minister of aircraft productions.

Though he is one of the busiest, as well as most important, figures in world affairs of today, Lord Beaverbrook still manages to find time to remember his friends, even in far-away America. Attesting this fact is the interesting cable sent in answer to a Christmas note from Sally, and which she has just received. It reads:

"My Dear Sally: Thank you very much for your letter. I am delighted to hear you are so happy. All my good wishes for this year are with you and your husband. And I hope that before another new year comes, you may be gladdened by the tidings of our victory, Beaverbrook."

Needless to say, Sally intends to preserve the cable, which some day will make a most interesting heirloom souvenir.

• • • AMONG Governor Talmadge's most enthusiastic followers are Homer and Lucy Candler Thompson, whose excitement reached its peak Tuesday when their favorite was inducted into office. Homer was recently appointed a member of Mr. Talmadge's new staff, and, as such, felt the full responsibility and importance of his duties on inauguration day.

Immediately after the exercises at which Mr. Talmadge was sworn into office, Homer hurried home to don his handsome new uniform for the brilliant reception held at the executive man-

• • • WITH practically everyone discussing the prevailing "flu" epidemic, Sally decided that she should be no exception. What do people with influenza do besides swallow capsules and submit to scorching mustard plaster applications? Haven't you wondered? Well, Sally has too, and today she satisfied her curiosity concerning this question by phoning stricken Atlantans and inquiring of their activities.

Thirteen-year-old Edward Scruggs, who is among those convalescent, amuses himself by firing blank cartridges from a rifle a target hung on the wall opposite his bed.

Marguerite Jones, one of the city's popular bride-elects, has not altogether resigned herself to being a victim. For the past week she has gotten up to attend parties in her honor, only to return to bed the moment she reached home.

On Sunday Miss Emily Evans will entertain the prominent bride pair at a cocktail party at her home on Fourteenth street, the affair to assemble a few close friends of the bride-elect.

Yesterday Miss Jones was central figure at the luncheon at which the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Samuel J. Fuller, entertained in the Mirador room of the Capital City Club.

"saved the day" for Peggy Dutton, who is increasing her vocabulary during her illness by searching through Webster's dictionary for words to complete her puzzles. Needless to say, Peggy has read everything in the house.

According to Sarah Lewis, when she attempted to stand up upon her recovery from influenza a few days ago, she discovered that "someone had stolen the bones out of her legs!" And that is the best description Sally has heard of the weakness which follows an attack of the contagious disease.

Mrs. Brock Hughes Jr. enjoyed lengthy telephone conversations during her illness, from which she has just recovered. She confided that between "catnaps" she indulged in reading, and became especially partial to newspapers.

The youthful Hopkins sisters, Betsy, Helen and Mary Ann, who are all confined to their beds, enjoy drawing and playing with their cat between medicinal doses.

So take heart, readers, and select yourself a pastime if you are among the scores of unfortunate influenza victims.

Watch Family Now While Epidemic Colds Are Spreading

At a treacherous time like this, with an epidemic of contagious colds all around you, what you do today may save you and your family a lot of sickness, worry and trouble later.

Follow these simple rules of health: Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Take some exercise daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

Then use these two time-tested treatments when needed.

AT THE FIRST SNIFGLE, SNEEZE OR NASAL IRRITATION... put a few drops of Vicks VapoRub up each nostril. This helps to prevent many colds from developing, because VapoRub is expressly designed to help Nature's own defenses against colds. (If a head cold causes stuffiness, you'll find that a few drops of VapoRub helps clear the clogging mucus and makes breathing freer and easier.)

Both VapoRub and VapoRub have been tested through years of use in millions of homes. When you use these two medicines you are not experimenting, you are not taking needless chances. Remember: If the condition of the cold fails to respond quickly to treatment—or if more serious trouble is indicated—call your family physician right away. In the meantime be prepared! Get a bottle of Vicks VapoRub today—have them handy, ready to use.

Miss Mary Cary Maynard Marries Dr. W. P. Leonard

The Winship Chapel of the First Presbyterian church formed the setting yesterday for the marriage of Miss Mary Cary Maynard, lovely daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Poole Maynard, and Dr. William Parker Leonard, son of Mrs. William Parker Leonard, which was solemnized last evening at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of members of the families, out-of-town guests and a few close friends of the couple.

Dr. William V. Gardner officiated and a program of music was presented by Dr. Charles A. Sheldon, organist.

The altar of the chapel was banked with ferns and palms, forming a background for a central arrangement of white calla lilies and white snapdragons. Completing the decorations were candelabra holding burning white tapers and smaller arrangements of white calla lilies interspersed with the greenery.

Ushers were George V. Campbell Jr., Frank Shumate, F. B. Ramey, Charles S. Hammond and Fort Adams. Albert Maynard, brother of the bride, was groomsmen.

Mrs. Patrick Miller, matron of honor, was gowned in an exquisite model of melody yellow tulle designed with a fitted bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline and double puffed sleeves trimmed with bow knots. The long graceful skirt was styled along bouffant lines. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and lavender sweet peas.

Miss Jane Campbell was junior bridesmaid. She wore a gown designed like that worn by the matron of honor, and her flowers were of yellow roses and sweet peas.

The radiantly lovely bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Martin McGeehe, of Talbotton. Her gown of handsome ivory slipper satin was fashioned with a tulip neckline and leg-of-mutton sleeves that extended into points at the wrists.

A snug-fitting bodice was trimmed with tiny satin covered buttons down the back and the full graceful skirt extended to form a graceful train in the back. Her veil of illusion tulle and rose-point lace was caught to her head with a coronet of orange blossoms.

A beautiful diamond necklace, a gift from her aunt, Mrs. William D. Jones, of Baltimore, Md., she carried a bouquet of pale lavender orchids and valley lilies.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Maynard entertained at a small reception at their home on Myrtle street.

Mrs. Maynard received her guests wearing a model of delphinium blue lace posed over matching tulle. A shoulder spray of pale pink orchids completed her costume.

Mrs. Leonard chose for her son's wedding a gown of Lindy blue crepe trimmed with cut-steeds and ornamented with a shoulder bouquet of valley lilies.

Assisting at the reception were Mesdames Roy McKnight and Edwin W. Billmore, sisters of the groom. Miss Betty Hammond kept the bride's book.

Dr. Leonard and his bride left for a wedding trip to New Orleans, after which they will reside in Charlotte, N. C., where the groom is a leading member of the medical profession.

Mrs. Leonard chose for traveling a winter white costume suit with which she wore brown accessories and Kolinsky furs adorned with pale lavender orchids.

Garden Club Plans Exhibits at Center

Members of the Peony Garden Club, of which Mrs. L. P. T. is president, will be in charge of the displays at the Garden Center this week. One arrangement planned is of fruit and flowers and others will demonstrate displays of the winter season.

Last week the Pine Tree Garden Club, of which Mrs. Freeman Strickland is president, featured winter arrangements combining evergreen and dried materials. Twin green glass bowls placed in the two niches, filled with long pine and graceful sprays of sea-odors.

A ginger jar on one bookshelf held an arrangement of dried grasses and seed pods, while on the other book shelf sumac, cottonwood and grasses were combined in a blue pottery pitcher. On the matel a shell was placed in the center holding a loose arrangement of slender barked sprays and briar-berries, silhouetted in the mirror.

Sprays of long pine and sumac were grouped in a low, shallow bowl, with a cluster of pine cones at the rim, while a clear glass bubble bowl held a submerged arrangement of narcissus blooms and acacia.

The Garden Center was decorated recently by the Lily Garden Club, with Mrs. S. A. Castellaw, president. Against a red background in the niches, snow globes were created with small animal figures as part of the landscape. Companion scenes were arranged on two shelves—a bleak winter scene with Father Time descending the ladder of months depicted the old year going out, while birds singing in the trees welcomed the new year at the top of the ladder.

Varieties of potted plants were grouped in the windows and on the book shelves were placed a pair of green glass bottles filled with flowering jasmine and spirea—a combination symbolic of early spring.

Ford Pledges All Possible Aid to F.D.R.

Makes Radio Address at Dedication of Naval School.

DETROIT, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Henry Ford told a nation-wide radio audience today that during the present crisis the Ford organization "wants to do everything possible to help America and the President."

The 77-year-old industrialist made the statement in connection with the formal dedication of his new Navy Service School in the grounds of the River Rouge plant at Dearborn. The school, which is to train young naval recruits for technical and mechanical assignments with the fleet at its bases, was accepted on behalf of the Navy by Rear Admiral C. W. Nimitz, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, representing Secretary Knox.

In addition to the older Ford and Rear Admiral Nimitz, Rear Admiral John Downes, commander of the Ninth Naval District; Commander G. P. Cecil, executive officer of the Naval Training Station at Great Lakes, Ill.; and Edsel Ford spoke during the ceremonies.

Commander Cecil referred to the school as "a boon to the Navy, especially in that it comes at a time when need for training is so paramount."

Yards To Work Three Shifts on 2-Ocean Navy

Knox Stepping Up U. S. Shipbuilding as Fast as Possible.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(UP)—The Navy Department has launched an all-out effort to speed construction of a two-ocean fleet, Secretary Frank Knox revealed today.

He said most of the nation's navy yards have gone on a six-day, 48-hour week, and some have started on a three-shift system that is being extended "as rapidly as possible" to virtually all yards. He added that in some instances yards may work two 10-hour shifts to permit overhauling of machinery, but that in all cases workers are paid overtime for work in excess of 40 hours—the basic work week.

Program Stepped Up. Knox emphasized that everything possible is being done to speed up construction in all yards. Simultaneously, Rear Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ships, told the house naval affairs committee that the shipbuilding program has been stepped up to a pace that will see 151 destroyers turned out in the next three years instead of the scheduled 100.

The committee, considering measures to expand and equip the two-ocean navy, swiftly approved a bill authorizing a $300,000,000 expenditure for better fleet anti-aircraft defenses.

It then heard a request for immediate authority and funds to build 280 "urgently needed" submarine chasers, minesweepers and motor torpedo boats capable of operating with the fleet or as escort vessels anywhere. Robinson said most of these small boats could be built this year.

Knox said the speedup in navy yards is being worked out in cooperation with Sidney Hillman, co-director of the office of production management.

He told a press conference that some difficulty has been encountered in organizing three shifts because of the necessity of training foremen and other supervising officers to handle the third eight-hour shift.

Army Likely To Call Greenberg by June 1

Zach Is Back Zach Cravey, an able man, is head of the state wildlife department again. Zach held the job previously when Eugene Talmadge had his first term as Governor.

Hunters and fishermen never professed any dislike for Zach, nor for his administration as wildlife chief. He did a fine job. He procured government funds and with them he had constructed a state game farm and a number of state fish hatcheries. Now Zach Cravey is back in office. No time was wasted in re-installing him. He went back in on January 1. Charlie Elliott went out like a light, so to speak.

It was not surprising, however. Neither Cravey's reappointment nor Elliott's quick dismissal. It simply is an accepted product of the spoils system of politics. There were no hard feelings.

Cravey and Elliott held a short meeting during which Elliott turned over records and explained certain department matters, including the ranger division.

They parted amiably. Elliott yesterday expressed hope that the wildlife program of Georgia will be greater than ever in the future.

"We've all got to work to make it a great state in which to hunt and fish. Co-operation and continued restoration of game and fish in our fields and streams are essential."

Elliott deserves a lot of credit for what he did as acting chief of the wildlife division. . . .

'Pinch Hitter' Memory of man, or sportsman, is short. It may be that the good hunters and fishermen, not to forget the landowners, do not recall the conditions which existed when Charlie Elliott was named by Governor Rivers to succeed Joe Mitchell.

I suspect many a man who hunted and fished does recall something of the circumstance, however, because license money and all other funds had been dissipated to the point where rock bottom was just above the tallest department employee's head.

As it developed, Joe Mitchell was just another guy named Joe and Charlie Elliott was a tremendous success in the wildlife field. It was no new field. He was equipped with the educational facilities to write a great textbook about conservation.

Charlie was, and is, equipped with a lot of things. As an executive and organizer, he provided the state's first great ranger division, a fine organization for the protection of wildlife.

He organized junior ranger divisions for the protection and propagation of game. The business of maintaining the hatcheries was observed and fields and streams are full of birds and fish as a result.

I could go on indefinitely about the fine things Charlie Elliott did when he took over a defunct department and turned it into a paying proposition.

But these few are enough. In politics, as in many other endeavors in this earthly realm, too often there is the case of a good man going out of public life without more than passing mention.

"The evil that men do lives after them; The good is oft interred with the bones."

That ancient oration reeks with horse sense. I am not shedding any tears for Charlie Elliott, nor bearing the spoils system which prompt this column. Charlie Elliott will do all right for himself. He is as well equipped for success as anybody I know.

Real Ability The only complaint we could possibly have is not so much as a writer but as a hunter and fisherman who annually pays for the privilege.

I do not see why the spoils system should extend to the point of completely removing a person who, by words and deed, has proved his value to those who count. I mean by those who count—those who pay off in license fees.

When Joe Mitchell sat over there in the state capital and said nothing, did nothing and the license money disappeared like the beans in a shell game, those of us who like to hunt and fish squawked a little.

Couldn't blame us. Matters reached the impossible stage. Ed Rivers got around to it. And he certainly picked the right successor—Charlie Elliott.

So our only complaint is that Elliott, having done so well in trying times, now must sever all connections with a field in which he is so expertly versed and so genuinely interested.

It does seem there should be some place in a state wildlife program for such a man.

Elliott, although turning in a magnificent job, never had the honor of officially being head of the division. He was just acting head. But what an actor!

In Short Reporting on the depleted condition of the Chattanooga baseball treasury, Wirt Gammon (Times) writes: "Jack Suydam (former Cracker), who signed last season with the stipulation that he be a free agent at the end of the season, wanted to stay here because Ki Ki Cuyler was to be manager."

"Joe Engel re-signed him for $100. "To pay him the $100, Joe used money he made from the Interstate Fair. There was not a centy note in the ball club treasury."

R. E. Miles, tennis enthusiast of Nashville, Tenn., wires from Tampa, Fla.:

"Another tennis prognostication for your exemplary column. Frank Kovacs veritable reincarnation of Tilden. Inevitably great player, played inspired tennis in defeating Riggs, a better player. National finals should oppose Riggs and Kovacs, with Kovacs emerging victorious. Or I don't know tennis."

The Southern League was bound to be a great deal more colorful with skippers like Ray Blades, Bert Niehoff and Oscar Roettger as new additions, and now New Orleans comes up with the great Gabbo Gabler and Jack (Rabbit) Bolling, former Crackers. Gabler can outtalk excited Siamese twins.

Hank Won't Ask For Deferment, Official Says

Detroit Slugger Reported To Be Highest Paid Player in Game.

DETROIT, Jan. 15.—(AP)—A selective service official said today that big Hank Greenberg, Detroit Tiger outfielder and most valuable American League player last year, "probably will be in the Army by June 1."

W. H. Wells, chief clerk of Draft Board No. 23, said Greenberg, who holds order No. 621, would be mailed a draft questionnaire "within two or three weeks."

"If the number of draftees into the Army continues at the present rate," Wells said, "Greenberg probably will be called sometime in May and hardly later than June 1."

Wells said this was contingent upon the outfielder's classification in Class I and passing of the physical examination. He said Greenberg, the league's home run king who is reputed to be the highest salaried player in baseball, had discussed his case with draft officials "several months ago."

"He indicated he would not ask for deferment," Wells said.

Thus far 449 questionnaires have been sent out by the board at the rate of 25 a day.

Wells said that the number of men called, the number deferred, and the date of subsequent inductions would determine when Greenberg would be summoned.

Greenberg, 29, is reported vacation-bound for Honolulu. He is scheduled to report for spring training at the Tigers' camp March 2 at Lakeland, Fla.

The big outfielder, shifted to left field from first base last year, was a big factor in Detroit's pennant drive. His loss would be a blow to the Tigers who are barred by a league rule from making intra-league trades.

Harbert Fires Five-Under 67 To Take Lead

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Chick Harbert, former amateur star, today got his first taste of winter golf money when he rang up a hot 67, five under par, to lead the field in the first qualifying round of the $5,000 San Francisco match play open.

Playing in showers on the soggy Presidio course, the 25-year-old pro from Battle Creek, Mich., was two strokes ahead of another youngster, Marion Heifner, of Denver, caddy at the Stanford University course, who was alone in second place at 69.

Harbert, making his first winter swing with the money players, could not even finish in the Los Angeles open and the Oakland open, being cut out with the strategists at the end of the third round in each tournament.

But today he waded around the 6,600-yard course in championship form, going out in 33 and back in 34. Heifner had 34-35.

South Carolina Entries Show Up Well in Trials

19 Coveys Found in Georgia Trials at Waynesboro as Weather Turns Damp and Colder.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY. WAYNESBORO, Ga., Jan. 15.—Running right on schedule, the 41st annual Georgia Field Trials reached the half-way mark in the Open All-Age Stake tonight after a day of action in which eight braces turned up 19 coveys of quail.

Cushbawn 'Nellie, pointer bitch, owned by R. W. Norman, of Charleston, S. C., and handled by W. D. English, and Maple Brooks Jake's King, white and orange pointer, owned by R. Z. Cates, of Spartanburg, S. C., and handled by June Welchel, showed up well in today's runs.

The Spartanburg dog found three coveys and handled them well.

Tomorrow eight more braces will be set down. The Open All-Age Stake will be finished Friday, if it stays on schedule, and the Open Derby will be held then.

The weather was foggy, damp and colder today, and the change was welcomed because there were more coveys, only about eight having been turned up yesterday. Fifteen of the 30 braces already have been run.

A feature of today's program was the fried chicken and coffee with which ladies from the First Methodist church plied the participants at noon.

The 1940 winner, Gus Novotny, of Chicago, was forced to the 18th before beating Nelson Davies, of Coconut Grove, one up. Another handy winner was Earl Christensen, the Miami policeman, who downed H. C. Fruehof, of Detroit, 4 and 2.

Mize To Lose Weight and Try for Ruth's Homer Record in 1941

Giant Georgian To Train Early At Hot Springs

Johnny Has Been Getting Closer to Babe's Mark Each Season.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15.—(P)—A former manager of the Cardinals once said if Johnny Mize would start a season without being overweight he'd hit so many home runs that Babe Ruth's record of 60 would be in real jeopardy.

JOHNNY MIZE.

The big first baseman, who acknowledged an average of close to .999 at the food plate this winter, admitted today he was 20 pounds heavier than his best playing weight of 215 pounds.

But—and this means, watch out, Babe Ruth's record—Mize is going into training four weeks early in an effort to get into condition before reporting at the Cardinals' spring camp in St. Petersburg, Fla., February 28.

"I'm going to Hot Springs about February 1," he said, "and take the baths and play some golf to lose weight. I hope to take off at least 15 pounds before I go to Florida."

When the season opens on National League fences, Mize expects to start firing home runs from the very first day, and he sees that "60" of Ruth's well within reach.

"Every year since I've been up in the majors, I've hit a few more," he said, "and I expect to keep improving."

A powerful hitter, Mize swings a bat "like a toothpick," to use a trite but true expression. Battered by a shoulder injury for a while last year, he actually hit several home runs while batting virtually one-handed.

New Celtic Star Big Hit With Basketball Fans

'Ash' Resnick Makes Debut Here Next Thursday Night; Pros Praised by Press.

By THAD HOLT.

The Celtics have come up with another fire-eater in Ash Resnick, and observers spinning tall tales about the antics of the newest addition to the most famous basketball team of all time.

Resnick will make his debut here next Thursday night at the Auditorium.

Here is what R. M. Hitt Jr., in the Charleston News and Courier, has to say about the showy newcomer:

"Ash Resnick, a well-constructed boy, formerly played with the New York University team, fouled just about everybody except the ticket collector—but they all were minor violations. Five fouls were charged against him—but he stayed in the game, as the foul limit rule was not enforced.

Resnick, a newcomer to the Celtics, confined most of his efforts to ball-handling and dry-remark making, all of which brought numerous chuckles from the galleries. At one point of the game, during some of the Celtics' most furious ball-handling, Resnick went down. He came up with the question 'Who spit on the floor?'

The statement apparently was addressed to no one in particular but everyone in the building heard it."

Critics throughout the nation are lavish in their praise of the 1941 Celtic machine.

Here is an excerpt from the Charlotte News following the professional wizard's appearance last week:

"Basketball's hit show of this season, or any other season, the long-time famous Celtics are by all standards, first, great showmen and, secondly, a truly fine basketball team."

"Last night they were magnificent in both roles as they confused, kidded and completely outclassed the McCrary Eagles, a country fair semipro outfit in any league, 47 to 42, before 1,533 hysterical fans. The score, if it means anything, could have easily been doubled or tripled—just any figure the pros wanted."

"These Celtics gave the crowd the sort of show you always feared would end much too soon. When the crowd wasn't laughing, it sat in awe as the green-clad pros smashed through the McCrary defense pretty much as they pleased."

"Showmen in every sense of the word, the Celtics kept the score within reasonable degrees throughout the evening."

"S. Rose, of Cleveland, owner of the one-time Rosenbaum team, writes: 'Just received a letter from Eddie Gottlieb (manager of the Philadelphia Spas, of the American League), in which Eddie said: 'The Celtics look much better this season. They really looked like the team of old.'"

Jack Gassert, of Fort Wayne, Ind., former manager of the Fort Wayne Hoosiers, says: 'Your boys looked great here last night in defeating the Indianapolis Kautsky's. This boy Resnick is a great young ball player and will help your club this season. Of course, we all know Bobby McDermott will help any ball club. The Celtics really sold themselves again to the fans of Fort Wayne.'

The Celtics play Howard College in Birmingham tonight. Two days before the doors were opened at the City Auditorium over there all of the 4,000 seats had been gobbled up.

Tickets for the game here against the Police Crackers are on sale at Reeder & McGaughey's, at 66 Broad street, and at Adam Hat Store, 64 Peachtree.

Huie Is Hooley, Hutson Cracks At Field Trial

Ex-Tide Star Rides at Waynesboro; Praises Smiley Johnson.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

WAYNESBORO, Ga., Jan. 15.—Just to make it official, Don Hutson, the greatest pass receiver these United States ever saw, is the latest ex-Alabama star to add his name to the petition that the recent article in a national magazine by Huie is so much hooley.

Don dropped by Georgia Field Trials Association's meet today, rode one brace on a horse, slid off and remarked "I'm not in as good shape as I thought."

The brilliant end of the professional Green Bay Packers is visiting in Sylvester, near here, and doing a bit of quail hunting in his spare time. He came to Waynesboro upon the invitation of Henry Blount, and liked it so well he will return Thursday to yell at all braces.

"I know personally that three-fourths of the stuff Huie wrote about Alabama is not true and I believe all of it is not," he said. "Just like all the other players, I have never seen or heard of him. And I believe if he had as much to do with Alabama as he said, I would have known about it."

Don, looking trim and sleek after his pro season, reports Smiley Johnson, Georgia's captain and guard two years ago, did fine his first year in pro ball. He also played with the Packers.

"Johnson is a great kid," Hutson said, "and I think he'll be playing regular next season. He played a lot this year, but had to substitute for Buckey Goldenberg, the best defensive guard in the league. But Goldenberg is going to quit and I think Johnson is going to be in there on first string."

Don stopped in Tuscaloosa, Ala., on his way here and visited his two brothers who were members of the Tide freshman eleven last season.

"They are doing fine," he reported. "I don't know how good football players they are but the coaches think a lot of them and I wouldn't be surprised if they come through."

The twins are both halfbacks and played with Pine Bluff, Ark., before entering Alabama.

Hutson, like everybody else, just couldn't explain the Chicago Bears' 73-0 victory over the Redskins for the world's championship.

"I don't understand it and I don't think anybody else does, including the Redskins and Bears. It was just one of those things."

Hutson is the guy who caught those sensational passes from Dixie Howell in the Rose Bowl several years ago. And now he's keeping up the good work in the professional league. He is a handsome fellow and appears to be as great a guy as all the writers who know him better say.

He will spend the rest of this month hunting in Sylvester and then go back to Green Bay where he has a job with a paper concern.

DOT'S CAREER IS RATHER AMAZING

Dorothy Kirby was 21 years old yesterday. Some way or other, it's always hard for me to realize that, until yesterday, the veteran of tournament golf was not old enough to cast a vote. You might feel the same way, having read for years of the doings of Dot.

However, this was not meant to be a discussion of ages or even of politics. What I had been wondering about was just how Dot got such an early start and why.

A few questions and my curiosity was satisfied. It all goes back quite a few years to a miniature golf career near the Kirbys' home.

She was eight years of age at the time. And it got so she spent most of her time putting and putting around the course.

From the midget course to a full-size affair was no more than a hop and a skip. So at 11, Dot was shooting at pars. At that time, she was so interested in the game that she played a round every morning before going to school.

Then at 12, she was shooting in her first state meet, in which she reached the semifinals. The next year, at 13, Dorothy won the title. She repeated in the next one, skipped a year and then took her third title at 16. That was the end of the state tournament for Dorothy. She went looking for bigger game. And the second time she played in the southern—that was when she was 17—the big trophy was brought to the Kirby mantle.

Two years later, Miss Kirby went to the finals of the national tournament. All of that competition, and yet Dorothy was just 21 yesterday, celebrating her birthday in a tussle against a mild case of flu and not thinking about the tournaments she'll be playing in later this month in Florida.

It's still hard to realize that string of victories could be chalked up by such a young star. Starting at 13, Dorothy packed a golf career into a few years.

It's a remarkable career—one you don't find equaled just any way you turn. And don't ever think the end is in sight. Dorothy is just as enthusiastic about adding titles now. The experience will help, too.

So don't get the idea this covers her career. It's probably just a starter, for Dot has plenty of time to go more places.

If Armstrong Loses, He May Hang Up Togs

Henry Confident of Win Over Zivic With Eyes Improved.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Henry Armstrong, seeking greater glory even in the twilight of his career, returns to the ring Friday night in an attempt to recapture the welterweight crown from Fritz Zivic.

If the Chocolate Soldier fails in this attempt, it may be his last battle—surrender to the marching years—taps for one of the most amazing campaigns in pugilistic history.

But Armstrong, veteran of nearly 350 amateur and professional fights, says he won't fail, now that his eyes have been repaired and his body energized by a long-needed rest.

Hammering Henry hasn't fought for three and a half months; not since the night of October 4, when he lost the welter crown to this same Fritz Zivic, a strong, clever Pittsburgher who virtually blinded Armstrong during their 15 thrill-packed rounds.

Armstrong, the only man who ever held three ring titles simultaneously, lost the last of his crowns that night. And so doing, his eyes suffered such a battering and gashing that an operation was necessary on his left eye and long treatments were needed on his right.

"My eyes are as good as new, now," says the 28-year-old Los Angeles Negro. "They've come through training in fine shape. I haven't even used the face mask in sparring; the one I had to put on every time I trained during the last couple of years. Zivic won't be fighting a blind man this time."

Bowling News

The Bick's Bowling Palace five, of Atlanta, set three new records for the formidable Georgia State Inter-City league as they were bowling the Columbus Stars on the Columbus Bowling Center alleys last week end.

Winning four of five games from the Columbus Stars, the strong Atlanta bowling combination turned in a count of 664 for a new high single game mark, supplanting the previous high of 660 that had been bowled two months ago by the Decatur King Pin five; the Palace five rolled other games of 645, 617-564 and 533 to amass a grand total series of 3,023 for a new five-game series league record that is but 112 pins shy of the southeastern record. The previous high was 2,985 held jointly by Decatur and Palace.

Bill Berry, anchor man of the team, was the "shining light" in this great display of skillful pin scoring as he starts this week end with each of the six teams corraling their best duckpin talent in efforts to equal their standings in the listings. The schedule for January 18 is: Macon Bowling Academy vs. Decatur King Pin, at Decatur; Columbus Bowling Center vs. Columbus Stars, at Columbus; Bick's Bowling Center vs. Bick's Bowling Palace, at Atlanta.

White-Collar Girl

INSTALLMENT XL.

Just for a second I was sorry all I had was ginger ale. Ronnie Gladwyn and the big mills at Conshocken. That was a doe's head for the trophy room at Darby Mill. My poor darling, how did they put that across him. Served him up along with baked clams at Bailey's Beach, I shouldn't wonder. No wonder he hadn't written much. He was on his way over to tell me about it. Well, she's probably a lovely girl; God knows the Ledger had said so often enough. "Miss Veronica Gladwyn with her doll-like beauty almost lost in masses of white tulle and a single white camellia, grown in the hot-houses at Welshwood." Or was it a gold girdle and several gardenias the Ledger had her wearing at the assembly? I better order a snort so I can drink her luck when Wyn gets here.

But he must never know. If he knows it'll churn him all up. He'd be crazy enough to break off the engagement. He'd be worried all his life. Poor boy, he'd feel guilty. I can't sit and listen to him tell it to me. I can't, the Main Line would come out on him and he'd be so damn gentlemanly and conscientious. I don't want him that way. Quick, Kitty, think quick. I've got to get out. Talk slow now, something you just thought of.

"Jonny, I'm sorry, I've got to go. I've got an appointment I can't duck. Don't tell Mr. Strafford I was here, tell him I phoned. Tell him I had to go out of town on business. I can't see him today. Give him a big one. Keep him at the bar where he'll talk to people. Tell him I'm all right, I'm fine. I've just got some important business."

I could feel my teeth trying to chatter, but I threw all my Irish into it and said it slow. Of course Giono knew something was wrong, but he thought it was just a lover's quarrel, which Italians practically invented. Anyhow I had to trust him. I put down a dollar for the ginger ale and didn't wait for change. It was a black night. I went out of the place like a witch on the broomstick. I got as far as Sixth avenue when I saw a Yellow turn from under the L. I bet that was it, the flashing and golden car.

Put two different kind of people to live together, do they get to understand each other more and more, or less and less? I'm thinking of Uncle and Auntie. I sat in on some swell debates between those two. I used to think, the old fools are keeping me from doing my home work. Matter of fact I was now it was a swell demonstration in home economics. Take gardening, mostly Aunt Hattie didn't do much outdoors, it was too far away from the telephone and the sewing basket, but once and a while she'd read something about the thrift of the pioneers or Midwest. Womanhood of the Breadbasket of the Nation, and she'd run out and grab a hoe and slash round for a few minutes. Likely Uncle had set out a planting of flower seeds in a new place, carrying on some idea of his own. Auntie was sure to think they were weeds and ratch them all out.

When he got sore she said "I guess the sun was in my eyes," or else trying to get me into the brawl "I never know what your Uncle's going to do." He says "How would you, you don't make any effort to find out." Or she'd go good and feminine on him and swear they weren't flowers at all, only chickweeds. That was an error because he saved one of the seedlings she'd scratched out, he put it in a pot and practically incubated it himself and when it comes up a nice red zinnia he lays it in front of her on the breakfast table and says "Here's one of your chickweeds." She cries, not because she's sorry but because Uncle would go to that much trouble just to prove her wrong.

This time of year I'd like to go out to Manitou if it was only to hear the lawnmower again. That's something you miss in N. Y. The whole middlewest sound of lawnmowers in a summer sunset.

What every Soldier and his Family should Know.

by CAPT. GENE MORGAN.

"What sort of shelter is the 'winterized tent,' in which I understand a last number of selected service men, particularly in the southern camps, are being housed this winter?"

Practically speaking, the winterized tent is a wooden hut with a canvas roof. It is 16 feet square in area, and the floor is of cement or wood elevated from the ground. Ditches surround the walls, with earth banked up against the lower part of the walls. Up to the height of five feet the walls are of matchboard. Wind and rain are excluded through the canvas top, each board has a groove on one edge and a tongue on the other, and are thus fitted closely together. A hinged wooden door covers the entrance. The canvas top, of waterproof duck, starts from the dirt banking on the outside of the wooden wall and rises to a pyramid above the center of the tent. Heat in each tent is provided by an obese, coal burning iron stove, dubbed in the Army a laundry stove. The stove pipe runs up the center of the tent and the pokes through the canvas top of the pyramid's apex.

This type of stove radiates heat adequate for the comfort of the occupants, who in most cases are six in number. In addition they are warmly clothed and their cots are well blanketed—generally three blankets to a soldier. As in the new wooden barracks, the cots are steel and are equipped with cotton mattress, pillow, two sheets and a comforter. There are electric lights in the tents, but running water is obtained in a near-by latrine and a mess hall. Strict regulations control the placing of clothing, military equipment and personal articles, insuring a maximum of room, convenience and neatness for the tent occupants at all times.

Uncle Elmer kept his lawn-mower shined and oiled same as his golf clubs, and he used it a lot more. He had an idea we used to laugh about, that it would be fun to put a music cylinder into it, like a Swiss music box, so it would play Bye-Bye Blackbird or The Bells of St. Mary's while he was mowing. Even old Patty-shells liked to hear the grass being cut, he'd come out and lay by the kitchen steps and was gently every time Uncle came that side of the lawn. He knew Uncle needed a little admiration when he got sweating hard. But then Auntie got her big idea, one day while Uncle was at the factory a man came by with a wagonload of some trick Japanese maples. Auntie thinks that will be a nice surprise for Elmer, and she has three of them planted in a big triangle in the middle of the lawn. Of course Uncle was gentlemanly enough to pretend to be pleased, but it made mowing the grass that much harder. He had to keep dodging those baby trees, and belch like Henry Eighth. He attributed it to that poem by Joyce Kilmer about Only God can make a Tree which the Manitou Garden Club sent round on a card.

If a person does one kind of thing, that's like the way they are all the way through. Pop said once "He that is nitwit in little will be nitwit also in much."

Molly says it's not fair to get a down on women, because men have so much more time for thinking. They have sort of time between times, what a woman never has. Men don't have to tuck a dress under their knees every time they sit down in a windy subway car, or figure if they'll have a fresh pair of gloves for lunch. A man has more chances to get away from being a man.

Molly says it's been specially tough on women since lately, because they're getting to be citizens, and citizens have no sex. Sometimes I think Molly's getting a little hard, I mean a little sort of angry in the back of her mind. I wish there was some man, good and sweet enough for her, she'd go off the deep end about. There I am, getting back to sex again. Molly says the Delphine Detaille kind of business depends on a woman never forgetting she's a woman, and that's not fair. She says that's a European kind of an idea, or maybe French. I said nuts, that's universal.

Tell me about America, I always ask her when she comes east and we sit down together like a couple of citizens. I like to think of that train blowing whistles all the way across Illinois and Indiana and Pennsylvania, and Molly seeing things out the window. I used to get mixed up sometimes when I was traveling for Delphine: you see a lot of people who'd like to go where you're going and you see a lot of people staying where you'd like to be. Just for a minute you think it would be nice to stay put, if you knew where. That's what they learned in Philly, I guess, good old Sanktown.

I can feel what I'm thinking but we don't get to each practice thinking underneath, or how trying to say it in words. I say things to myself to find out how they sound, but I'm not passing any notes of confidence. Molly said one morning when we woke up after a milkman's matinee, or a Scotchman's matinee, "Did I talk under the ether?" Puts me in mind how Pat Kenzie had a notion when you wake up the first month you should always say "Rabbits, rabbits, rabbits," it's for good luck. She took three plush rabbits to bed with her so she wouldn't forget. If young men is luck she had it all right. Molly and me were more likely to think how we would pay the rent.

If you get into a habit of doing things yourself, how people lay down and let you do it. It was comical how Pat Kenzie lived on us at Tuscan Court. That's one problem about Mark Eisen would he want me just to live off of him? He's scientific and emancipated and stuff, but they always have the Queen of Sheba picture of women in the back of their mind. Crazy stuff, the Main Line idea was they would lower themselves to take me in, and the Morningside idea is Mark would be climbing a trapeze if he got me. How's about taking a citizen at par? That's the way Wyn did, if he noticed them at all.

Molly says women overstate things when they get worked up, because they have to spend 90 per cent of their lives in understating. A good citizen don't dare let on how things hurt, or what joy feels like. Yes, joy, it's funny how you get ashamed even to yourself to use plain words like joy and beauty. I put on the high-class dame act once and a while, partly copied from Delphine, I suppose. But when you're putting on an act how you love to be caught up on it. By the right person that is. How about Mark? Is he the one I want to be caught up by?

I say to Molly, tell me about America. She knows what I mean but we're too bashful to say it out. I want to be a good American. Mark is all hopped up about persecutions and refugees in Europe, and natural enough, but I can't go very big on Causes that's a long way away. I got enough of them on my mind right here. There's that elevator boy in this house with a kid that's got paralysis. America's got her own nails to polish. We'll need plenty vanishing cream for our own puss. Mark says the cowardly. I told him it's good George Washington sense. He made two holes, didn't he, one for the cat and one for the kitten. They laughed at him, said the kitten could use the big hole. But suppose they both want to go through at the same time. The little cat wants his own little doorway that fits him. Kitty wants her own way through.

I wonder if Martha Washington ever had the jitters? She can't have been always just a nice old dame in a fichu.

I'd be a better American if I married Mark than if I married Wyn. The more we get mixed up, I mean race-mixed-up, the better. We got no time here for that kind of prejudice. But I suppose it's all right to wish they wouldn't be so hairy?

Flu Continues To Increase in Southern Area

Two Deaths Reported as Epidemic Moves Eastward.

By The Associated Press.

A mild form of influenza continued to increase to epidemic proportions in the southern states last night, taxing hospitals and causing schools to be closed.

Reported cases in 11 states topped 50,000, but health authorities said no definite figures were available since last Saturday.

Indicating a trend eastward in the incidence of cases were reports of dwindling numbers of new cases in Arkansas, Louisiana and Kentucky, while states nearer the Atlantic had increases.

In Tennessee, health authorities said the disease had "reached its peak" in the Nashville area, but east Tennessee communities reported a growing number of cases.

Several schools were closed. Two deaths from flu and complications were listed, one in Alabama and one in South Carolina.

The Spartanburg area of South Carolina was gripped with epidemic, more than 15,000 cases being reported. North Carolina had 5,000 cases.

Latest available figures in Mississippi were 14,561 cases in 74 of 82 counties.

5,002 Cases in Georgia.

Reports to the United States Public Health Service, as of Saturday, gave these cases in other states: Kentucky 5,950; Tennessee 4,719; Louisiana 4,983; Alabama 2,201; Virginia 4,200; Georgia 5,002; Arkansas 4,400.

Florida had no estimates, but there were 165 cases at the State Hospital for the insane at Chattahoochee and the State College for Women at Tallahassee had 130 cases.

Health authorities in Anderson, S. C., continued a ban on schools, theaters, churches and all public gatherings as cases spread. Schools in three other towns were closed.

Influenza slowed up the mails, hindered telephone service and closed schools over Alabama.

Bar Fans at Games.

The Farm Security Administration adjourned an educational conference three days ahead of time and Alabama Polytechnic Institute announced spectators would be barred from two basketball games.

Schools were closed in six counties and other counties reported absenteeism was increasing.

At Birmingham, Acting Postmaster Arthur H. Albright said service on approximately 50 mail routes had been curtailed due to illness among the carriers.

Schools in parts of southwest Virginia were closed.

While health authorities pointed out the type of flu now current is mild, they warned that it could have serious consequences in poorly nourished individuals or those suffering from other infections.

MORE CASES IN EAST: WEST REPORTS DROP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Public Health Service reported today a steady increase of influenza cases in the east and a drop in the west.

Figures reported for the week ending last Saturday showed a total of 89,828 for the country as a whole, but officials declared it was a "very conservative" estimate.

There were 33,283 cases reported from Texas alone.

Three Fulton Bills Given Legislature

Three of the bills introduced in the general assembly yesterday are aimed directly at Fulton county.

A measure, introduced by State Senator Hugh Couch, of Atlanta, seeks to combine county tax collecting authorities; a bill introduced by Representative Helen Douglas Mankin would prohibit the sale of fireworks in the county, while a measure sponsored by Mrs. Mankin, Paul Etheridge Jr. and Cicero Kendrick asks for a maximum pauper tax levy of two and three-quarter mills on the two-thirds vote of two successive grand juries.

Couch's bill would combine the offices of tax receiver and tax collector under county authority, and the measure to be elected on the first Monday in June, 1941. The bill does not interfere with the tax investigator's office or the board of tax assessors.

The pauper tax measure substitutes a special act that expires December 31 and permitted a maximum relief measure of three mills.

Flu Epidemic Believed Eased; Atlanta Schools To Stay Open

Tough luck, Junior, but that rain yesterday wasn't enough to cause school authorities to order a holiday for today, flu or no flu epidemic.

Health and school authorities were slightly encouraged over the outlook for an early end to the "mild" epidemic that has engulfed the Atlanta area, despite the rainy weather yesterday, which, in itself, kept many cautious children and adults at home away from classrooms and offices.

The only official check made in either county or city schools yesterday was in the white elementary grades, representing 43 schools, where attendance was off one and one-half times what it was Tuesday. Approximately 6,100 students in these grades were out as compared with only 4,400 Tuesday. However, teachers were inclined to blame the rain rather than new cases of flu.

Dr. Reid Hunter, of the city school department, said teachers and city health authorities were in accord in believing the flu epidemic had been checked. Dr. Hunter said most of the teachers were ready back at work and the county school department said most of their teachers were back also.

REPORTS OF FLU FROM OVER STATE

The following reports on the flu situation were received yesterday:

Cartersville.

City schools suspended until January 20 when between 25 and 50 per cent of the enrollment failed to report, due to illness. Bartow county schools at Adairsville, Kingston, Emerson and Alto also have closed. Doctors estimate 800 cases of flu in the county.

Milldeleville.

Colonel J. H. Jenkins, president of Georgia Military College, reported approximately 100 students were in makeshift classes, and 54 are in the infirmary. About 50 cases reported at Georgia State College for Women, and week-end holidays cancelled.

Hawesville.

Several hundred cases reported in Towns county and in

Willkie Books Plane Passage For Wednesday

Two Personal Friends To Accompany Him to Europe.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(UP)—Wendell Willkie and two companions will leave for Europe aboard a Pan American Clipper plane at 8:30 a. m. next Wednesday, January 22, Willkie's office announced tonight.

Leo Casey, Willkie's press representative, said that Earl Bixby, Pan American vice president, had confirmed the booking for the former Republican presidential candidate late this afternoon.

Willkie will be accompanied by two personal friends, Landon Thorne, a retired New York businessman, and John Cowles, publisher of the Minneapolis Star-Journal, Casey said.

Physical Fitness Movement Urged

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—(P)—John B. Kelly, former Olympic and National Sculls champion, who President Roosevelt named director of the nation's physical fitness program, says mechanization of the U. S. Army is useless if "our men aren't strong enough to man" the tanks and mobile units.

"It is deplorable that 35 per cent of the draftees in the United States were found unfit physically," he told a group at Franklin Institute last night.

Kelly said Germany is spending two billion marks a year on its physical development movement and this nation should equal that expenditure.

"We must give more time to the development of the body and less time to the development of the mind," Kelly said.

at the COURTHOUSE

Trial of Clarence J. Thompson, city water meter inspector, under indictment on charges of defrauding the city, has been postponed until Tuesday by agreement of counsel. A demurrer filed by the defense is being considered by Judge John D. Humphries. Its main contention is that Thompson should not have been indicted on a charge of defrauding the city of cash money, but that the charge should be defrauding the city of water.

The Fulton sheriff and his deputies yesterday were asked to be on the lookout for two Breward, N. C., boys who were said to have run away from school there January 15. The Breward sheriff named them as Dan Breward and Owen Lee, about 15, and said he believed they were heading for Atlanta.

Fulton county commission will hold a special public meeting at 10:30 o'clock today to hear from the public on the tentative 1941 budget.

Judge John D. Humphries transferred from criminal division to civil division of Fulton superior court yesterday to take the place of Judge Walter C. Hendrix, who disqualified himself in a civil suit involving a company in which he said he owned some stock. Judge Hugh M. Dorsey and Judge E. E. Pomeroy presided over the two criminal divisions operating.

Tennessee Senate Kills 3 Poll Tax Repeal Bills

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 15.—(P)—In lightning-like strokes, the Tennessee senate killed today three poll tax repeal bills and by rejecting them stymied introduction of similar measures for two years.

The controversy-laden legislation—a plank in the Democratic state convention platform, once urged by Governor Prentice Cooper and carrying the public approval of Shelby County (Memphis) Political Leader E. H. Crump—was ground under by a vote of 21-11. One senator was absent and not voting.

First Soldiers Sail To Man New U.S. Base

Troops Leave for Newfoundland on 'Swank' Army Transport.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(P)—The first contingent of American soldiers to leave for military bases recently acquired from England sailed for Newfoundland from the Brooklyn Army base today on the old German liner Amerika, seized by the United States in the World War and refitted as the "swankiest" army transport afloat.

In the ranks were doughboys from the Second, Third and Seventh Corps areas—New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland and the midwest. Officers asked that the exact number aboard and "the type or numerical designation of units" be excluded from press reports "in the best interests of national defense."

Army officials declined to give the exact destination of the aged, coal-burning vessel—once the pride of Kaiser Wilhelm's merchant marine.

They did say the ship would be used as a floating barracks for about five months while land barracks were being constructed. Lumber for the buildings was in the liner's holds, and Army trucks were lashed to her decks.

Liner Manhattan Is Still Aground

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(P)—The United States Lines said today that attempts to refloat the liner Manhattan, fast on a sand bar near West Palm Beach, Fla., would be renewed Friday when the tug Relief arrives from New York.

Efforts by Coast Guard cutters and light tugs have failed to free the 24,289-ton vessel, which was bound on a pleasure cruise to California when she grounded Sunday night close inshore.

Officials said tugs would continue pulling at the ship at each high tide to prevent her washing closer to the beach and that no attempt actually to free her would be made until the sea-going Relief arrived.
